INTRODUCTION

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and the National Park Service (NPS) have prepared an Air Tour Management Plan (ATMP), which regulates commercial air tours conducted over Badlands National Park (the Park) pursuant to the National Parks Air Tour Management Act of 2000 (the Act)¹. The Act requires that the FAA, in cooperation with the NPS (collectively, the agencies), establish an ATMP or voluntary agreement for each National Park System unit for which one or more applications to conduct commercial air tours has been submitted, unless that unit is exempt from this requirement because 50 or fewer commercial air tour operations are conducted over the park on an annual basis, 49 United States Code (U.S.C) § 40128(a)(5). The objective of the ATMP is to identify acceptable terms and conditions for commercial air tours conducted over the Park and effective measures to mitigate or prevent the significant adverse impacts, if any, of commercial air tours on natural and cultural resources, Wilderness character, visitor experience, and tribal lands within the jurisdictional boundaries of the Act.

The FAA, in coordination with NPS, has prepared an environmental assessment (EA) in compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) to analyze a range of alternatives and evaluate potential issues and impacts as part of the ATMP planning process. The ATMP has also been developed in accordance with Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act and other applicable laws, regulations, and policies. A draft ATMP and draft EA were released on May 16, 2023, for public review and comment.

The agencies notified the public of the availability of the draft ATMP and draft EA using various methods including a notice in the Federal Register issued on May 18, 2023, a news release posted on the Park's website and social media accounts, and emails to the agencies' distribution list (see Appendix D of the EA, Distribution List). Comments were accepted on both the draft ATMP and draft EA from May 16 through June 20, 2023. The agencies posted frequently asked questions (FAQs), the draft ATMP, and draft EA to the NPS Planning, Environment, and Public Comment (PEPC) website at the start of the public comment period. In addition, Park staff responded to media inquiries. This report summarizes comments received during the public comment period.

Any comments submitted to PEPC, as well as any written comments mailed to the NPS, were considered and included in the project file. The agencies analyzed the public comments and considered all comments in revising the draft ATMP and the draft EA and in preparing the final ATMP, final EA, and the Findings of No Significant Impact/Record of Decision (FONSI/ROD). This Comment Summary Report provides a summary of the substantive comments submitted during the public comment period.

COMMENT ANALYSIS METHODOLOGY

Comment analysis is a process used to compile and correlate similar comments into a usable format for the agencies' decision-makers and the program team. Comment analysis assists the agencies in organizing, clarifying, and addressing information and aids in identifying the topics and issues to be evaluated and considered throughout the ATMP planning process.

The process includes five main components:

- Developing a coding structure;
- Employing a comment database for comment management;
- Reviewing and coding of comments;
- Interpreting and analyzing the comments to identify issues and themes; and
- Preparing a comment summary.

The agencies developed a coding structure to organize comments into logical groups by topic and issue. The coding structure was designed to capture the content of the comments rather than to restrict or exclude any ideas. The agencies used the NPS PEPC database to manage the public comments received. The database stores the full text of all correspondence and allows comments within each correspondence to be coded. All substantive comments within each correspondence were grouped by topic. Substantive comments are those that do one or more of the following:

- Question, with reasonable basis, the accuracy of the information in the NEPA document;
- Question, with reasonable basis, the adequacy of the environmental analysis;
- Present reasonable alternatives other than those presented in the NEPA document; or
- Cause changes or revisions in the proposal.

Substantive comments raise, debate, or question a point of fact or analysis. The intent of the agencies is to capture the concern raised by the commenter and evaluate each substantive comment based on the individual concern, topic, or suggestion, regardless of the repetitive nature of the concern. Those comments that simply provided support or opposition are not considered substantive. All substantive comments were grouped by similar themes under each code, and those groups were summarized with concern statements. Concern statements are written summaries of the comments received on a particular topic.

In total, the agencies received 2,594 correspondences, of which 2,570 were form letters.

SUMMARY OF COMMENTS AND RESPONSE TO COMMENTS

The following section summarizes the comments received during the public comment period and is organized by topic. The summarized text is formatted into concern statements to identify the thematic issues or concerns represented by comments within the code. The agencies only summarized comments with substantive content. The agencies collectively reviewed and analyzed each comment to determine if there were any changes warranted to the draft ATMP or the draft EA, based on the information, question, or concern provided. The agencies have provided a response following each concern statement.

Adverse Impacts: Soundscape Impacts

1. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that the EA should include a description of existing sounds in the Park.

Agencies' Response: Section 3.1.1 of the EA, Affected Environment for Noise and Noise-Compatible Land-Use, describes the existing sounds in the Park. Additional information on noise modeling can be found in Appendix F of the EA, Noise Technical Analysis.

2. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that the EA should analyze the noise impacts of air tours moving outside of the ATMP planning area.

Agencies' Response: While air tour operations outside of the ATMP planning area are not subject to the Act, the indirect effects of moving air tours outside of the ATMP planning area are covered under NEPA. Outside of the ATMP planning area, operators fly air tours according to Visual Flight Rules, which are based on the principle of “see and avoid” and may vary greatly. It is difficult to predict with specificity if, where, and to what extent any air tours would be displaced to areas outside of the ATMP planning area, including at altitudes at or above 5,000 ft. above ground level (AGL). The EA acknowledges that displaced air tours have the potential to affect noise-sensitive locations outside the ATMP planning area. See Section 3.1.2 of the EA, Indirect Effects. To evaluate potential effects of displaced flights, the agencies conducted a conservative, screening-level noise analysis (refer to Appendix F of the EA, Noise Technical Analysis, Section 8, for more information). The analysis indicates that it would be highly unlikely that air tours that are displaced outside the ATMP planning area under these alternatives would generate noise at or above day-night average sound level (DNL) 65 decibels (dB), the FAA’s indicator of significant impacts.

3. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that the noise data presented in the EA is biased because it was not reviewed by a third party. Commenters also suggest that parameters such as temperature, wind velocity, and density altitudes were not considered, and that the noise data in the EA is 20 years old and no longer representative of current conditions.

Agencies' Response: The John A. Volpe National Transportation Systems Center (Volpe Center) conducted and reported the noise analysis for this ATMP and EA. The Volpe Center operates under the U.S. Department of Transportation and is considered an independent third party as it is not a part of the NPS or the FAA.

Further, the FAA’s Aviation Environmental Design Tool (AEDT), Version 3e (Lee et al., 2022) is the FAA-approved computer program for modeling noise, as listed under Appendix A of FAA's Part 150 Airport Noise Compatibility Planning (14 Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) § A150.103(a)). Requirements for aircraft noise modeling are defined in FAA Order 1050.1F, Environmental Impacts: Policies and Procedures, and in Federal Aviation Regulations (FAR) 14 CFR Part 150, Airport Noise Compatibility Planning. Noise modeling conducted for the draft ATMP and draft EA was consistent with these requirements. Additional information about noise modeling can be found in Appendix F of the EA, Noise Technical Analysis.

AEDT default weather data include average annual weather (i.e., based on 30-year normal and 10-year averages) for each airport, as well as International Standard Atmosphere (ISA) conditions. The ISA is an atmospheric model of how the pressure, temperature, density and viscosity of the Earth's atmosphere change over a wide range of altitude (see https://aedt.faa.gov/Documents/guidance_aedt_nepa.pdf).

AEDT is a critical element in FAA's federally required environmental review process, implemented in response to increasing air traffic and the modernization of the nation's aviation infrastructure. AEDT dynamically models aircraft performance in space and time. With over 1,000 licenses in 46 countries to date, AEDT has become the de facto global reference model for considering the interdependencies between aircraft-related fuel burn, noise, and emissions, and their collective environmental effects.

Data scientists and software developers at the Volpe Center have led the development and systems integration of AEDT. The Volpe Center team collaborates with FAA's Office of Environment and Energy, aviation manufacturers, and stakeholders from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) Committee on Aviation Environmental Protection (CAEP), the European Organization for the Safety of Air Navigation (EUROCONTROL), and the FAA ASCENT Center of Excellence—a cooperative aviation research organization co-led by Washington State University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Georgia Tech, and many other universities and organizations to ensure the best-available data and methods are applied by the model. In addition to model development, Volpe Center engineers support a number of analysis efforts with AEDT.

4. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that it is inappropriate to single out only aircraft for noise impacts in the Park when other sources of noise, such as motorcycles, are not regulated. Additionally, commenters note a study completed by the town of Keystone that concluded that motorcycles were the biggest source of noise in the town.

Agencies' Response: Under the Act and its implementing regulations, an ATMP may only regulate commercial air tours. Other types of overflights, such as military overflights or general aviation overflights, are not regulated under an ATMP. Similarly, on the ground activities such as the use of certain types of vehicles within the Park, (i.e., motorcycles) are outside the scope of an ATMP. Thus, the ATMP process was appropriately focused on the impacts of commercial air tours on Park resources and visitor experience. The agencies did consider the cumulative impact of noise, including ground transportation (where allowed within the Park) in Section 3.1.2 of the EA, Environmental Consequences for Noise and Noise-Compatible Land Use.

5. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest several areas related to noise analysis were not included in the EA, including current noise sources; potential benefits of quiet technology under Alternatives 1 (the No Action Alternative), 3, and 4; and the effects of air tours moving outside of the ATMP planning area.

Agencies' Response: Section 3.1.1 of the EA, Affected Environment for Noise and Noise-Compatible Land Use, describes the existing sounds within the ATMP planning area.

The benefits (i.e., reduction in noise) of quiet technology were considered. The implementation of quiet technology would be anticipated to improve the acoustic condition under Alternatives 3 and 4; however, because the use of quiet technology by operators would be voluntary and it is not possible to predict how many flights would use quiet technology versus standard technology, the potential beneficial impacts are difficult to quantify.

The effects of the displacement of air tours are thoroughly discussed in the EA as part of indirect impacts. Air tours outside of the ATMP planning area (i.e., at or above 5,000 ft. AGL or more than ½-mile outside the Park boundary) are not subject to the Act and are therefore not regulated under the ATMP. Routes outside of the ATMP planning area are difficult to predict and are necessarily speculative. Specific air tour routes, altitudes, and numbers of tours are not available for displaced air tours to assess noise and other potential indirect and cumulative impacts. However, Appendix F of the EA, Noise Technical Analysis, Section 8, considers this scenario finding that displaced air tours outside the ATMP planning area are unlikely to reach DNL 65 dB, the FAA's threshold for impacts. Specific routes and altitudes outside the ATMP planning area were not modeled due to the uncertainty associated where these routes might be located.

Adverse Impacts: Socioeconomics

1. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that the economic analysis in the EA is inadequate because it underestimates the difficulty of air tour operators repurposing their aircraft and business for different ventures.

Agencies' Response: The economic analysis is adequate. Additionally, although the ATMP would limit the opportunities for air tour operators and ancillary businesses to generate revenue from tours conducted within the ATMP planning area, the ATMP does not preclude operators from making up this revenue generation in other ways such as using their aircraft for other business ventures or conducting air tours elsewhere within the region. As described in Section 3.7.2 of the EA, Environmental Consequences for Environmental Justice and Socioeconomics, operators may choose to conduct air tours outside of the ATMP planning area or they could also choose to use their aircraft for other businesses or operations such as search and rescue, fire protection, resource mapping and assessment, and flight for life operations. However, the agencies cannot speculate on the need to change an aircraft's set up or the cost.

In reviewing this comment, the agencies considered the following:

The price per person for each air tour varies by company and tour and can range from $59 to $270 per person (<https://coptertours.com>). With an average of 3 passengers per flight, the range of potential revenue from air tours of the Park ranges from $252,225 - $1,154,250. However, based upon reporting data, including the number of tours per route where the cheapest flight accounts for 45% of air tours and the most expensive air tour route accounts for 3% of air tours, the potential revenue is likely closer to $509,028.

2. Concern Statement: Commenters contend that the ATMP's flight allocation numbers do not take into consideration fluctuations in the market.

Agencies' Response: The agencies understand that the air tour market will fluctuate, and operators may experience temporary inconsistencies in demand. When considering the data period for analysis, the agencies used operator-reported air tours from 2017, 2018, and 2019. Reporting data from 2020 was not used because the 2020 COVID-19 pandemic resulted in abnormalities in travel patterns across the U.S., which does not represent the conditions in a typical year. The agencies also decided against using 2021 or 2022 data due to continued abnormalities associated with the COVID-19 pandemic and the unavailability of reporting data for 2021 or 2022 during most of the planning effort. The 3-year average was used to identify the total numbers of flights allocated under Alternatives 3 and to identify the proportion of flights allocated to existing operators under Alternative 3 and 4 in the EA. Because Alternative 2 does not authorize air tours within the ATMP planning area, it does not allocate any commercial air tours to operators.

Adverse Impacts: Wildlife/Biological Impacts

1. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that the EA does not provide evidence that wildlife in the Park is impacted by air tours. Commenters suggest that wildlife could be conditioned to the noise and visual presence of the aircraft because wildlife has been documented as conditioning to disturbances in parks.

Agencies' Response: As discussed in Section 3.3 of the EA, Biological Resources, and Appendix H, Section 7 No Effect Memo, noise from commercial air tours may impact wildlife in many ways, including altered vocal behavior, breeding relocation, changes in vigilance and foraging behavior, and impacts on individual fitness and the structure of ecological communities (Shannon et al., 2016; Kunc et al., 2016; Kunc and Schmidt, 2019). These impacts may not always result in visual behavioral changes such as flushing. Wildlife have been documented showing a stress response to the presence of aircraft (Stockwell et al., 1991), including herd dispersal and running from the noise. There is no evidence that wildlife in the Park are conditioned to aircraft noise. The agencies considered the potential impacts of the ATMP on the Park's wildlife, including migrating birds. The ATMP is expected to have no effect on federally listed threatened or endangered species and limited to no impacts on wildlife species or their habitat when compared to current conditions due to the prohibition of air tours.

2. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that tricolored bat would not be affected by air tours because air tours only operate during daylight when bats are not active.

Agencies' Response: The agencies determined that the proposed action would have no effect on the tricolored bat through consultation with U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. During the day in the summer months, tricolored bats roost in trees, often among leaves (Endangered and Wildlife and Plants: Endangered Species Status for Tricolored Bat, 87 FR 56381, (proposed September 14, 2022) (to be codified at 50 C.F.R. 17) <https://www.govinfo.gov/app/details/FR-2022-09-14/2022-18852>). Although they are not active (flying or foraging) during the day, bats are present (roosting) during daytime hours and noise can disturb colonies of roosting bats. Additional information on the tricolored bat can be found in Section 3.3.1 of the EA, Affected Environment for Biological Resources, and in Appendix H of the EA, Section 7 No Effect Memo.

3. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that as a result of displaced air tours, the ATMP would result in adverse impacts on wildlife outside of the ATMP planning area where wildlife is less conditioned to the presence of people and unnatural sounds.

Agencies' Response: The agencies acknowledge that the proposed action could result in displaced flights. This type of shift in air tour activity is referred to as "air tour displacement," and could consist of air tour operators shifting routes or altitudes to just outside the ATMP planning area, some of which could result in impacts to wildlife to the extent that they are present near the locations where the displaced air tours would occur. While it is difficult to predict with specificity if, where, and to what extent any air tours would be displaced to areas outside the ATMP planning area, including at altitudes at or above 5,000 ft. AGL, the effects of the displacement of air tours are discussed in the EA as part of indirect impacts, and are included in Appendix F of the EA, Noise Technical Analysis. Specifically, the Noise Technical Analysis states that for overflight operations conducted by a Robinson R-44 helicopter at 500 ft. AGL, the number of daily operations over a 12-hour period needed to exceed DNL 65 dB (FAA's threshold for significance) is 1,086. Other aircraft currently operating within the ATMP planning area include the Cessna 206. The number of daily operations needed to exceed a DNL 65 dB level for this aircraft operating at 1,000 ft. AGL is 1,306.

Adverse Impacts: Wilderness Character Impacts

1. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that the ATMP would have little to no benefit to Wilderness because operators will still be able to operate in close proximity to, but not within, Wilderness areas. Commenters suggest that the best way to protect Wilderness would be to enter into a voluntary agreement that would further offset flight paths from Wilderness areas and potentially increase altitudes of those routes.

Agencies' Response: The Act allows the agencies to develop an ATMP or a voluntary agreement. The agencies determined that an ATMP is best suited for the Park, including protection of Wilderness character. All the action alternatives evaluated reduce the intensity of noise within the Park's wilderness. This is true even if the operators choose to fly at or above 5,000 AGL above Wilderness or just outside the ATMP planning area. Thus, under any action alternative, including the ATMP, there would be beneficial impacts to Wilderness character. Additional information on impacts to Wilderness can be found in Section 3.5 of the EA, Wilderness.

Further, the agencies did consider alternatives that would mitigate impacts to the Badlands Wilderness. Appendix F of the EA, Noise Technical Analysis, models noise within the Badlands Wilderness. Time audible in this area for Alternative 4 (the alternative with the fewest flights) was modeled to be less than 60 minutes (non-contiguous), while time above 35 dBA would occur for less than 15 minutes. For Alternative 4, location points within the Wilderness portion of the ATMP planning area are modeled to have time audible as high as 55.8 minutes (location point 18, Scenic Overlook), time above 35 dBA as high as 4.9 minutes (location point 20, Center of Wilderness), and time above 52 dBA up to one minute (location point 18, Scenic Overlook). The agencies decided to prohibit commercial air tours within the ATMP planning area to protect the Park's resources (including the Wilderness character of the Badlands Wilderness) and visitor experience.

Adverse Impacts: Cultural Resource Impacts

1. Concern Statement: Commenters disagree with cultural resource impacts described in the EA. Commenters describe the following points:
 - No air tours are over native lands as defined by federal law.
 - No physical impacts have been documented to sensitive cultural sites.
 - No data related to impacts to "feeling and setting".
 - Undertaking would have no effect on historic properties.
 - Feelings of tribes are presented in a biased manner.

- The same impacts would occur if air tours were flown outside of the planning area.
- Cultural impacts could be greater under the ATMP as resources outside of the Park are less well documented.

Agencies' Response: The agencies conducted consultation with Tribal Nations, as required under NEPA and in accordance with Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act. While the ATMP planning area includes portions of the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation, no air tours currently fly over or are proposed to fly over the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation. While the portion of the Park currently overflowed by commercial air tours does not include tribal lands as defined by the Act, several tribes have ancestral connections to these lands and continue to use them for traditional cultural practices. The following responds to the individual points made by the commenter:

As the EA states there are no anticipated physical effects to historic properties because there is no land acquisition, construction, or ground disturbance.

In regard to impacts to feeling and setting and the effect determination, as described in Section 3.4 of the EA, Cultural Resources, and in Appendix G, Cultural Resources Consultation and Summary, the identification effort focused on identifying properties where setting and feeling are characteristics contributing to a property's eligibility for listing under the National Register of Historic Places, as they are the type of historic properties most sensitive to the effects of aircraft overflights. This included properties where a cultural landscape is part of the property's significance, as an example. The agencies specifically considered whether air tours could affect the use of Traditional Cultural Properties (TCPs) associated with cultural practices, customs or beliefs that continue to be held or practices today.

Throughout the Section 106 process, the agencies requested consulting party input to help identify historic properties within the Area of Potential Effects (APE). The agencies requested and received consulting party input on the potential effects of the alternatives on historic properties throughout the Section 106 process. The agencies determined and received concurrence from the State Historic Preservation Officer and consulting parties, that the ATMP would not alter the characteristics of any historic properties located within the APE as there would be a reduction in audible or visual effects from existing conditions, resulting in a finding of no adverse effect on historic properties. Additional information on cultural resources can be found in Section 3.4 of the EA, Cultural Resources, and in Appendix G, Cultural Resources Consultation and Summary.

The tribal opinions, as well as all other Section 106 consulting parties, were obtained through the required Section 106 consultation process as well as the scoping process and the public meetings.

Regarding the commenters' concerns related to cultural resource impacts as they relate to the ATMP planning area, the EA addresses the impacts within the ATMP planning area as well as outside the ATMP planning area. Based on current air tour activity, the number of flights displaced outside the ATMP planning area could be similar to the number of flights currently operating within the ATMP planning area. The preciseness of routes and altitudes for tours flown on alternative routes are generally subject to Visual Flight Rules, which are based on the principle of "see and avoid", and therefore may vary.

Adverse Impacts: Visual Impacts

1. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that Alternatives 1, 3, 4, or a voluntary agreement would have done more to minimize visual impacts than the ATMP, which will result in air tours outside of the ATMP planning area. Commenters expressed that a voluntary agreement would have allowed participants to formulate routes that would minimize perceived visual impacts.

Agencies' Response: The agencies do not agree with the commenter's statement. The Preferred Alternative maximizes protection of Park resources, including Park viewsheds, by prohibiting commercial air tour operations in the ATMP planning area. Visual effects are discussed in Section 3.8.2 of the EA, Environmental Consequences for Visual Effects. The agencies also disagree with the commenter's statement that Alternatives 1, 3, 4, or a voluntary agreement would be more protective of Park resources, including visual resources, than the Preferred Alternative.

Adverse Impacts: Equity

1. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that the ATMP discriminates against visitors who have a mobility challenge, including the elderly, the very young, and those with physical disabilities, who may not be able to view the Park by other means. Commenters recommend that the agencies consult with the Americans with Disabilities Act. Commenters suggest that all visitors should have the ability to choose how to visit public spaces.

Agencies' Response: Air tours are only one of many ways for a person with disabilities to experience a national park. The NPS works to ensure that people with disabilities can participate in the same programs, activities, and employment opportunities available to those without disabilities in the most integrated setting possible. Alternative means of accessing facilities, programs, and services are provided when an accessible direct experience cannot be provided. Accessibility solutions are developed in consultation with the disability community and various partners including NPS concessioners and commercial service operators. The NPS has a team dedicated to breaking physical and programmatic barriers to make parks more inclusive for people with sensory, physical, and cognitive disabilities. The team includes regional accessibility coordinators who work to make sure that NPS staff have the tools and training necessary to provide accessible and inclusive outdoor recreation and interpretation opportunities for park visitors and employees alike.

The Park's Ben Reifel Visitor Center and White River Visitor Center are both accessible to wheelchair users and provide ramped entrances, reserved parking, and accessible restrooms. The Cedar Pass Campground has two campsites that are fully accessible by wheelchair and one accessible site in the group loop. Most scenic overlooks and wayside exhibits are accessible to wheelchair users, many of which have recycled lumber or wooden boardwalks with gentle grades.

The Fossil Exhibit and Window Trails are accessible boardwalks. The first section of the Door and Cliff Shelf Trails are also accessible to wheelchair users. The Bigfoot Pass Picnic Area has reserved parking, ramps, and an accessible vault toilet. Programs held at the Cedar Pass Campground amphitheater are accessible by a paved and well-lit path from reserved parking spaces in the parking lot. Additionally, talks held at the Fossil Exhibit Trail, other overlooks, or the Ben Reifel Visitor Center are accessible to wheelchair users. Additional accessibility information can be found on the Park's website and NPS mobile app.

Adverse Impacts: Climate Change / Greenhouse Gases / Air Quality

1. Concern Statement: Commenters note that the ATMP would generally have minor impacts on air quality; however, commenters stated that air quality impacts may be shifted to outside of the ATMP planning area. Commenters suggest that air quality outside of the ATMP planning area affected with displaced flights warrants analysis.

Agencies' Response: The agencies analyzed potential air quality impacts and determined that the Preferred Alternative would have direct beneficial impacts on air quality within the ATMP planning area. See Section 3.2.2 of the EA, Environmental Consequences for Air Quality and Climate Change, and Appendix E of the EA, Environmental Impact Analysis Methods, Section 4.2, Air Quality and Climate Change. The agencies acknowledge that the proposed action could result in displaced flights resulting in the potential for minor impacts to air quality. It is difficult to predict with specificity if, where, and to what extent any air tours would be displaced to areas outside the ATMP planning area, including at altitudes at or above 5,000 ft. AGL.

Specific air tour routes, altitudes, and numbers of tours are not available for displaced air tours to assess air quality and other potential indirect and cumulative impacts.

Adverse Impacts: Other

1. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that the NPS conservation mandate should serve as a key basis for evaluating impacts with both the proposed ATMP and EA focused on evaluating potential impacts of commercial air tours on the Park's natural and cultural resources, visitor experiences, and tribal lands in and adjacent to the Park. Commenters recommend that the EA include a section on the NPS Organic Act, from which the NPS draws its conservation mandate.

Agencies' Response: The NPS has considered applicable laws and policies in the development of the ATMP and EA, including its Organic Act. A list of applicable laws and policies is not required content for EAs. See 40 CFR § 1501.5. Consistent with NPS guidance, NPS has included a non-impairment determination as an attachment to the Record of Decision. The non-impairment determination is the required documentation demonstrating compliance with the NPS Organic Act.

2. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that because air tours are likely to continue outside of the ATMP planning area that the agencies engage and consult with other jurisdictions to urge protection for natural and cultural resources.

Agencies' Response: The agencies acknowledge that the proposed action could result in displaced flights and analyzed potential impacts that may result from such flights. The agencies provided those jurisdictions where displaced flights could occur with an opportunity to provide comments. The agencies consulted with affiliated tribes, including those with tribal lands near or adjacent to the Park, under Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act, and coordination occurred with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for compliance with Section 7 of the Endangered Species Act. Notices were also specifically sent to state and county officials for opportunities to provide public comment.

3. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that displacing air tours outside of the ATMP planning area and over communities that have been avoided previously would result in new noise and safety concerns over these areas.

Agencies' Response: The agencies analyzed the potential environmental impacts of displaced tours (including noise) and potential safety concerns as part of the ATMP development process. The agencies acknowledge that the proposed action could result in displaced flights. Because air tours outside of the ATMP planning area are not regulated by the ATMP, air tour routes outside of this area are difficult to predict with specificity. The EA acknowledges that displaced air tours have the potential to affect noise-sensitive locations outside the ATMP planning area. See Section 3.1.2 of the EA, Environmental Consequences for Noise and Noise-Compatible Land Use, Indirect Effects. To evaluate potential effects of displaced flights, the agencies conducted a conservative, screening-level noise analysis (refer to Appendix F of the EA, Noise Technical Analysis, Section 8, for more information). The analysis indicates that it would be highly unlikely that air tours that are displaced outside the ATMP planning area under these alternatives would generate noise at or above DNL 65 dB, the FAA's indicator of significant impacts.

The FAA reviewed the alternatives for safety and risk mitigation. Flights outside of the ATMP planning area are required to comply with Visual Flight Rules. The pilot-in-command is required to take action to ensure the safe operation of the aircraft.

Any noise concerns about flights being conducted outside the ATMP planning area may be reported to the appropriate FAA unit: <https://www.faa.gov/noise/inquiries>

Alternatives: Alternative 2 – No Air Tours in Planning Area

1. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that the specific monitoring measures in the EA are vague.

Agencies' Response: Section 4.0 of the ATMP, Compliance, includes a statement that the NPS and FAA are both responsible for the monitoring and oversight of the ATMP as well as reporting violations of the ATMP to the Flight Standards District Office (FSDO). Further, the ATMP includes a provision for amendments if the ATMP is not adequately protecting Park resources and/or visitor enjoyment.

2. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that the Preferred Alternative is the only alternative that meets the Park's goals, objectives, purposes, and values. Commenters suggest that this be emphasized more in the EA.

Agencies' Response: The agencies believe the ATMP and EA adequately provide justification for the Preferred Alternative, which prohibits commercial air tours within the ATMP planning area. See Section 5.0 of the ATMP, Justification for Measures Taken, and Section 2.5 of the EA, Alternative 2 (Preferred Alternative).

Alternatives: Alternative 3 – Mitigation Measures

1. Concern Statement: Commenters note that the time of day for Alternatives 3 and 4 conflicts with the hours stated in Section 2.6.7.

Agencies' Response: As described in Section 2.6.4, of the EA, Commercial Air Tour Day/Time and Seasonal Restrictions, Alternative 3 would permit flights to operate one hour after sunrise until one hour before sunset. Exceptions to this time-of-day restriction would be relaxed with the use of quiet technology, as described in Section 2.6.7, Quiet Technology Incentives, which would allow quiet technology aircraft to conduct air tours beginning at sunrise or ending at sunset on all days that flights are authorized. Similarly, per Section 2.7.4, Commercial Air Tour Day/Time and Seasonal Restrictions, Alternative 4 would permit flights to operate three hours after sunrise until three hours before sunset. Exceptions to this time-of-day restriction would be relaxed with the use of quiet technology, as described in Section 2.7.7, Quiet Technology Incentives, which would allow quiet technology aircraft to conduct air tours beginning at sunrise or ending at sunset on all days that flights are authorized. This is further described in Section 2.8, Summary Comparison of the ATMP Alternatives, Table 6.

2. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that the ATMP does not define quiet technology, which would provide operators with greater certainty prior to making investment decisions.

Agencies' Response: The Preferred Alternative does not authorize commercial air tours within the ATMP planning area and thus does not include a quiet technology incentive. Alternatives 3 and 4 in the EA would have authorized air tours within the ATMP planning area and thus included a quiet technology incentive, consistent with the Act. Because aviation technology continues to evolve and advance, the agencies decided that under Alternatives 3 and 4, aircraft eligible for this incentive would be determined on a case-by-case basis.

Process Comments: Public Review

1. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that public meetings were not held, and key stakeholders were not involved during the development of the ATMP as required by the Act. Commenters suggest that outdated and incorrect data was used, which discriminate against the operators and public.

Agencies' Response: The agencies notified the public of the availability of a Public Scoping Potential Alternatives newsletter, which presented potential alternatives to be carried forward in a draft ATMP and NEPA analysis. The agencies shared this information using various methods of communication, including a news release posted on the Park's website and social media accounts, and emails to the agencies' distribution list, which included operators and congressional officials, and informed the public that comments would be accepted from September 6, 2022, through October 6, 2022. The agencies then notified the public of the availability of the draft ATMP and draft EA, as well as the date and time of the public meeting, using various methods including a notice in the Federal Register issued on May 18, 2023, a news release posted on the Park's website and social media accounts, and emails to the agencies' distribution list (see Appendix D of the EA, Distribution List). Additionally, the operators were sent a letter via U.S. Postal Service as well as email notifying them of the Federal Register notice and highlighted the public comment period deadline and public meeting information. The agencies held a virtual public meeting on May 25, 2023. Digital and written comments were accepted on both the draft ATMP and draft EA from May 16 through June 20, 2023. The agencies posted FAQs, the draft ATMP, and draft EA to the NPS PEPC website at the start of the public comment period.

With respect to the commenters statement about the use of outdated and incorrect data that discriminates against the operators, it is unclear which pieces of data the commenter is referring to. When considering the air tour data used for the analysis, the agencies used operator-reported air tours from 2017, 2018, and 2019. The agencies did not use data from 2020 due to potential variations in air tour numbers due to the COVID-19 pandemic and did not use data from 2021 as the complete data set for 2021 was not available during the majority of the planning process. Further, routes, altitudes and other operational parameters were obtained from the operators themselves. Additionally, the agencies used the most up-to-date science in noise modeling, environmental impacts, visitor use experience, and other sciences to determine impacts to the environment and the natural and cultural resources of the Park. Finally, in September 2022, the agencies conducted public scoping asking for any new or additional information. Any specific information brought forward was considered for inclusion in the analysis.

Process Comments: Other

1. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that the agencies should have completed voluntary agreements rather than ATMPs.

Agencies' Response: The Act allows the agencies to develop an ATMP or a voluntary agreement. The agencies determined that an ATMP is best suited for the Park. See Section 1.4 of the EA, Purpose and Need, and Section 5.0 of the ATMP, Justification for Measures Taken for additional information.

2. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that the scope and content of the Mount Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park EAs are inappropriately similar given the differences in the two NPS units. Commenters suggest that the process was rushed and haphazard in approach. Commenters suggest that the NPS had an agenda in selecting Alternative 2.

Agencies' Response: Similarities between the EAs would be expected in many cases because the parks have many of the same stakeholders, affiliated tribes, and air tour operators and because both ATMPs are being prepared pursuant to the Act. However, the EAs are distinct and consider impacts to resources and visitor experience for each individual park. The planning effort for the ATMP, the process for developing alternatives, and the extensive consultation conducted by the agencies are all discussed in the EA. The agencies identified Alternative 2 as the Preferred Alternative because it provided the greatest level of protection for the purposes, resources, and values of the Park, as well as Park's management objectives, and is the most responsive to tribal concerns.

The NPS decision making is guided by the 1916 NPS Organic Act. Specifically, the NPS Organic Act requires the NPS "to conserve the scenery and the natural and historic objects and the wildlife [within National Park System units] and to provide for the enjoyment of the same in such manner and by such means as will leave them unimpaired for the enjoyment of future generations." See Section 5.0 of the ATMP, Justification for Measures Taken, and Section 2.5 of the EA, Alternative 2 (Preferred Alternative). The NPS's mandate to conserve park resources and values "applies all the time with respect to all park resources and values, even when there is no risk that any park resources or values may be impaired" (NPS Management Policies Section 1.4.3, 2006).

3. Concern Statement: Commenters note that the agencies did not meet with the National Parks Overflights Advisory Group (NPOAG) during the ATMP planning process, and they suggest that the agencies did not use staff with expertise in operations or safety.

Agencies' Response: The agencies held many virtual meetings with the NPOAG since the agencies' planning process began in 2020. In September 2020, the agencies discussed the plan and schedule submitted to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit for ATMP development. In January 2021, the NPOAG meeting included a more detailed discussion of the agencies' approach to ATMP development. During this meeting, the NPOAG provided input on the agencies' approaches to defining current air tour conditions, which was determined to be the three-year average from 2017-2019. During the September 2021 NPOAG meeting, the agencies discussed draft ATMPs being released over the August to October 2021 timeframe.

In addition to these three virtual meetings, the agencies held an in-person NPOAG meeting in June 2022 in Fort Collins, Colorado, where the agencies shared detailed information on the status of ATMP development at each of the 24 park units and heard the issues, concerns, and input from the NPOAG. The most recent NPOAG meeting was held in person in March 2023. The agencies also shared progress updates submitted to the Court at 90-day intervals with the NPOAG and provided additional updates when and where appropriate.

The agencies sought input from the NPOAG on appropriate matters during these virtual and in person meetings. However, the NPOAG was not given deliberative information during the ATMP planning process, nor were the agencies required to provide such information to the NPOAG. All information shared with the NPOAG is shared with the public. Further, the agencies continue to meet and consult with the NPOAG with the latest meeting being held in March 2023.

The duties of the NPOAG as listed in the Act, Section 805, state that NPOAG will provide advice, information, and recommendations to the Administrator and the Director on:

- a. The implementation of the National Parks Air Tour Management Act of 2000 and the amendments made by this title;
- b. Commonly accepted quiet aircraft technology for use in commercial air tour operations over a national park or tribal lands, which will receive preferential treatment in a given air tour management plan;
- c. Other measures that might be taken to accommodate the interests of visitors to national parks; and
- d. At the request of the Administrator and the Director, safety, environmental, and other issues related to commercial air tour operations over a national park or tribal lands.

As discussed in the March 2023 NPOAG meeting, NPOAG is an advisory group to the agencies. ATMPs are not aviation rulemaking. The ATMP development process is following the Act, NEPA, Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act, and Section 7 of the Endangered Species Act.

The NPOAG has provided and will continue to be asked to provide input on the process and factors that may impact all ATMPs. For example, the NPOAG provided the agencies information about aircraft flight monitoring systems that were included in Alternatives 3 and 4 in the EA and included in ATMPs for other parks. NPOAG members were also specifically alerted to the comment period opportunities, including both the scoping and public review of the draft ATMP and draft EA.

As part of the planning process, the FSDO was consulted on the safety aspect of the alternative development as well as provided an opportunity to review and comment before the draft documents were published for public comment.

Process Comments: NEPA

1. Concern Statement: Commenters question whether the cumulative impacts analysis in the EA meets the intent of NEPA because it has very little discussion of any topic other than aircraft.

Agencies' Response: The cumulative impact analysis presented in the EA is consistent with the requirements in the applicable regulations. The cumulative analysis describes the impact of past, present and reasonably foreseeable planned actions plus the impact of each alternative on the resources carried forward for analysis. The commenter does not provide specific examples of content the commenter believes the agencies should have included in the cumulative impact analysis. Thus, it is not possible to explain why the agencies did not include additional content beyond the explanations included in the EA. The cumulative impacts analysis in the EA complies with the requirements of NEPA.

2. Concern Statement: Commenters note that the EA refers to cabins located in the Wilderness, which don't exist within the Park.

Agencies' Response: The EA was updated. In Section 3.1.2 of the EA, Indirect and Cumulative Effects for Noise and Noise-Compatible Land-Use, the sentence should read as follows: "The NPS is currently implementing management actions which may require helicopters for access to remote locations not accessible by other means. Other activities that use motorized tools include fencing to exclude ungulates and maintenance for existing cabins within Wilderness enclaves."

3. Concern Statement: Commenters recommend that the EA include an appropriate use analysis as described in NPS Management Policies Section 1.5, an "other applicable laws" section including discussion of the Organic Act, and an impairment determination with the final EA and decision document.

Agencies' Response: The NPS is not required to document an appropriate use analysis, though it may choose to do so voluntarily. However, an appropriate use analysis is not needed for the ATMP because it prohibits commercial air tours within the ATMP planning area. Consistent with NPS practice, a non-impairment determination is an attachment to the Record of Decision.

4. Concern Statement: Commenters suggest that Section 8.0 of the ATMP should be revised and described in the EA. Commenters are concerned that the statement, "the ATMP may be amended at any time" creates an impression that the decision could be reversed on relatively short notice. Commenters suggest alternate wording: (add new first sentence) This ATMP will remain in effect until amended or terminated by mutual agreement of the agencies. This ATMP may be amended at any time (i.e., delete: "at any time"): if the NPS, by notification to the FAA and the operator(s), determines that the ATMP is not adequately protecting Park resources and/or visitor enjoyment; if the FAA, by notification to the NPS and the operator(s), determines that the ATMP is adversely affecting aviation safety and/or the national aviation system; or, if the agencies determine that appropriate changes to this ATMP are necessary to address new information or changed circumstances.

Agencies' Response: Section 8.0 of the ATMP is needed because the ATMP may need to be amended sometime in the future for any number of reasons. For example, the ATMP may need to be amended if the ATMP is not adequately protecting Park resources and/or visitor enjoyment; the ATMP is adversely affecting aviation safety and/or the national aviation system; or, if the agencies determine that appropriate changes to this ATMP are necessary to address new information or changed circumstances. The agencies do not agree that their decision could be reversed on short notice. The Act requires any ATMP amendments to be published in the Federal Register for public notice and comment (see 49 U.S.C. § 40128(b)(6)). Further, any amendment that would permit commercial air tours within the ATMP planning area would require additional environmental review.

Correspondence:	RE: Badlands National Park Air Tour Management Plan (ATMP) Comment
I would like to comment on the purposed ATMP for the Badlands National Park. I have personally viewed the Badlands from the existing helicopter tour located at the east entrance to the Badlands National Park. This experience provides a unique perspective of the Badlands, one that would not be possible for many people, especially the physically handicapped.
The objective of this ATMP appears to solve problems that don't really exist. The listed impacts of native wildlife, cultural impacts, wilderness character, and visitor experience are not really affected by the existence of current ariel tours. If anything, the visitor experience is enhanced with the existence of the aerial tours. Much of the wildlife seems to be unaffected by the tours, with many deer, bighorn sheep, etc. living within a short radius of the existing aerial tour site.
I also firmly believe the ATMP extension to within 1/2 mile of the National Park is an infringement on private property owner's rights.
Please reconsider this ATMP altogether as this will force these existing businesses to close resulting in the loss of jobs, tax revenue, and will negatively impact the Badlands experience for everyone.
Thank you,
Tony Farmen

Correspondence:	As a former user of BADL, from experiences driving, hiking, and on horseback, I feel any air traffic over the park should be prohibited. Air traffic, particularly rotary wing aircraft are incredibly noisy and are an inappropriate way to experience or "see" the park. Even from longer distances, aircraft sound will not only be intrusive, but the reflection of aircraft sounds from geologic features will be substantial. Please do not permit aircraft over Badlands National Park. Thank you.

Correspondence: Thank you for the opportunity to comment. I know Badlands NP very well. Since 1983, I visit the Park every year, front country and backcountry. In my opinion, air tours have a significant adverse impact on the Park. Our parks are in danger of turning into Disney theme parks. Air tours allow people with money to fly around and adversely impact the lesser privileged visitors on the ground. I support the Preferred Alternative.

EA comments:

- general comment: i think the definition of an air tour operator could be interpreted to include a commercial drone operator. Drone operation for video sightseeing purposes. Maybe need something to specifically exclude drones in the EA.

- page 11. Regarding if an air tour crashes. The EA says the Great Plains Fire Management Office will respond. Shouldn't it be the responsibility of the Badlands NP rangers to respond? Also it states the Fire Monitoring Handbook guides fire response. Should probably state Fire Management Plan instead.

-page 15. Lists the Parks management goals, objectives, purposes and values. Very good list, very important in justifying preferred alternative. In my opinion the EA needs to do more to link the Preferred Alternative to the goals, objectives, purposes and values. I also think it should do more to clearly state how the other Alternatives do not meet the goals, objectives, purposes, and values of the Park.

-section 2.5.2. Monitoring Enforcement. Specific monitoring sentences are vague. Can the FAA "require" the same monitoring equipment that is described in the Monitoring Enforcement sections of Alternatives 3 and 4?

-section 2.6.6 Adaptive Management. EA states: "NPS would conduct monitoring to ensure terms and conditions of ATMP remain consistent with Park Management Objectives". I think this needs more detail. It's kind of vague. Monitoring often falls by the wayside after plans are approved.

-section 2.6.7 Quiet Technology Incentive. Sunset and sunrise flying is stated as a possible incentive. I think this is a bad idea.

Sunrise and sunset in the Badlands is the best time to experience solitude, observe wildlife, and "have a moment". Park literature encourages visitors that this is the best time to see wildlife. The sight and sound of a helicopter would have significant adverse affect.

How does this "incentive" support the Park's goals, objectives, purposes, and values?

-section 2.7 page 29. The EA states Alternative 4 "improves the acoustic environment of the park". As a stand alone sentence that can't be correct, in my opinion.

-page 35. Time of Day for Alternative 3 and 4: the hours stated conflicts with the hours stated in section 2.6.7.

-page 62. There is a sentence that says."maintenance for existing cabins" Edit/correction may be needed. No cabins in Badlands.

-Cumulative Effects sections. The EA doesn't have much discussion of cumulative effects other than aircraft. Not much on other vehicle traffic , Sturgis Rally surge etc. Does this limited discussion of other cumulative effects meet the intent of the EA process?

-Alternative comparisons. It's probably just me but I found it confusing to read how impacts between the Alternatives were "better" than other Alternatives. for example Alternative 3 would have "direct beneficial impacts compared to the No Action Alternative". I don't see them as "beneficial" impacts, I see them as lesser of two evils kind of thing.

The Preferred Alternative is the only alternative that meets the Park's goals, objectives, purposes, and values. I don't think the EA links this enough.

Thanks again for the opportunity to comment.

Correspondence: Please consider the safety and economic impact of limiting the tourist overflights that are being proposed for Mt Rushmore and the Badlands.

On the surface severe restrictions seem like a good idea but in reality it will cause harm to local businesses and visitors by limiting access to these wonderful National Parks. There are solutions that will benefit ALL Americans and park visitors not just the few that oppose overflight. I would hope that all stakeholders can come to a reasonable and fair solution to current issues and concerns.

Mr. Eric Veach, Superintendent

Badlands National Park

Subject: Badlands National Park Proposed Air Tour Management Plan and Environmental Assessment

Dear Superintendent Veach:

I am writing on behalf of over 2,400 members of the Coalition to Protect America's National Parks (Coalition), all of whom have worked or volunteered for the National Park Service (NPS) and who collectively represent more than 45,000 years of national park management experience. The Coalition studies, educates, speaks, and acts for the preservation of America's National Park System. Among our members are former NPS directors, regional directors, superintendents, resource specialists, rangers, maintenance and administrative staff, and a full array of other former employees, volunteers, and supporters.

We offer the following comments for your consideration regarding the proposed Air Tour Management Plan (ATMP) and Environmental Assessment (EA) for Badlands National Park (BADL or Park), as described at:

<https://parkplanning.nps.gov/document.cfm?parkID=117&projectID=102957&documentID=128167>

GENERAL COMMENTS

1. First, we commend the agencies for preparing a proper environmental assessment (EA) for the proposed ATMP that considers a range of alternatives and evaluates the potential impacts of those alternatives -When considering a proposed agency action, such as a new ATMP, NPS must comply with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) and related guidance, including the Council on Environmental Quality (CEQ) NEPA implementing regulations (40 CFR Parts 1500-1508) and with the agency's own NEPA guidance found in the NPS NEPA Handbook 2015. We have been deeply concerned that NPS has failed to comply with basic NEPA guidance by issuing numerous previous "proposed ATMPs" for other parks without considering a reasonable range of alternatives and without preparing any sort of NEPA analysis for public review. We applaud you and the planning team for following the appropriate NEPA process requirements that the BADL proposal deserves.

2. Compliance with the NPS Organic Act (54 USC §100101) is integral to compliance with the National Parks Air Tour Management Act (49 USC §40128), yet the EA barely mentions the Organic Act or its relevance - Section 802 (Findings) of the National Parks Air Tour Management Act (NPATMA) states, in part: "Congress finds that-

(1) the Federal Aviation Administration has sole authority to control airspace over the United States;

(2) the Federal Aviation Administration has the authority to preserve, protect, and enhance the environment by minimizing, mitigating, or preventing the adverse effects of aircraft overflights on public and tribal lands;

(3) the National Park Service has the responsibility of conserving the scenery and natural and historic objects and wildlife in national parks and of providing for the enjoyment of the national parks in ways that leave the national parks unimpaired for future generations[]" (Emphasis added)

The NPS "responsibility for conserving" park resources and values mentioned in subsection # 3 of the NPATMA above derives directly from the NPS Organic Act of 1916 and is often referred to as the NPS "conservation mandate." As described in NPS Management Policies 2006, Section 1.4.1: "The most important statutory directive for the National Park Service is provided by interrelated provisions of the NPS Organic Act of 1916 and the NPS General Authorities Act of 1970, including amendments to the latter law enacted in 1978." As further stated in Management Policies Section 1.4.3:

The fundamental purpose of the national park system, established by the Organic Act and reaffirmed by the General Authorities Act, as amended, begins with a mandate to conserve park resources and values. This mandate is independent of the separate prohibition on impairment and applies all the time with respect to all park resources and values, even when there is no risk that any park resources or values may be impaired. . . Congress, recognizing that the enjoyment by future generations of the national parks can be ensured only if the superb quality of park resources and values is left unimpaired, has provided that when there is a conflict between conserving resources and values and providing for enjoyment of them, conservation is to be predominant. This is how courts have consistently interpreted the Organic Act. (Emphasis added)

In addition, the Badlands National Park enabling legislation provides that "[t]he administration, protection, and promotion of said Badlands National Park shall be exercised under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior by the National Park Service, subject to the provisions of the Act of August 25, 1916" (which is the NPS Organic Act). See 16 USC §441c. In other words, the Park is to be managed in accordance with the NPS conservation mandate and "when there is a conflict between conserving resources and values and providing for enjoyment of them, conservation is to be predominant."

Given that both the proposed ATMP and the EA are or should be focused on evaluating potential impacts of commercial air tours on the park's natural and cultural resources, visitor experiences, and tribal lands within and adjacent to the park, we would expect the NPS conservation mandate to serve as a key basis for evaluating those impacts. However, we are quite concerned that the EA barely mentions the Organic Act (e.g., it is mentioned once at EA p. 87). In our view, the NPS conservation mandate is so important to the management of air tours in national parks that Congress embedded a key portion of the Organic Act in Section 802(3) of the NPATMA. To address this concern, we recommend that a section summarizing applicable laws relevant to the proposed action, including the NPS Organic Act and the BADL enabling legislation be added to Chapter 1 or as an appendix.

3. The EA appropriately considers the 2017 Foundation Document for Badlands National Park, which provides important context for the planning process regarding the park's significance and fundamental resources that could be adversely affected by commercial air tours - Relevant sections of the Foundation Document include the following:

(p. 5) Park Significance: "The park contains spectacular scenery, predominantly highly eroded landforms that comprise a concentrated collection of rutted ravines, serrated towers, pinnacles, and precipitous gulches... The park protects places of spiritual and historical significance to the Lakota people... The North Unit preserves 64,250 acre of designated wilderness... The park provides unparalleled opportunities to observe ... native animals in their natural habitat."

(pp. 6-7) Fundamental Resources and Values: "Fundamental resources and values help focus planning and management efforts on what is truly significant about the park. One of the most important responsibilities of NPS managers is to ensure the conservation and public enjoyment of those qualities that are essential (fundamental) to achieving the purpose of the park and maintaining its significance. (Emphasis added) If fundamental resources and values are allowed to deteriorate, the park purpose and/or significance could be jeopardized. The following resources and values have been identified as "fundamental" for Badlands National Park:

Archeological and Ethnographic Resources - The White River Badlands are a place of spiritual and historical significance for many Native American groups, especially for the Lakota people.

Scenic Views - The erosion of sediments provides an array of dramatically changing vistas. The spectacular shapes and colors of the landscape range from the low rolling hills to tall walls and spires.

Native Wildlife - Badlands National Park supports range for wildlife native to the mixed-grass prairie of the northern Great Plains. Visitors can encounter bison, bighorn sheep, and pronghorn.

Wilderness Experience/Values - The expanse of the remote and wild landscape within the Sage Creek Wilderness area provides the opportunity for exploration and solitude. The lack of urban noise pollution allows visitors to experience the natural soundscape of the prairie.

While the Foundation Document does not say so specifically, the spiritual / sacred importance of the Badlands to the Lakota people cannot be overstated. Chief Spotted Elk (Big Foot) and his band of Lakota came through what is now Badlands NP in December 1890 on their way to their rendezvous with fate at Wounded Knee on December 29, 1890. According to oral history, the last Ghost Dances took place in what is now the South Unit of Badlands NP. As a result, the sacred nature of the Badlands landscape to the Lakota people provides one of the, if not the most, compelling reasons to eliminate air tours at BADL.

In brief, protecting Places of Spiritual Significance for Native American Groups, Scenic Values, Native Wildlife, and Wilderness Experience/Values are all closely related to and dependent upon preserving the "natural setting" of the Park. Protecting the "natural setting" from visual and noise intrusions of low-flying air tours, especially the many helicopter tours proposed at BADL, is fundamental to conserving the resources and values described above.

4. Consistent with NPS Management Policies Section 1.5, the EA should include an "appropriate use analysis" for the proposed action - Management Policies Section 1.5 states, in part: "An 'appropriate use' is a use that is suitable, proper, or fitting for a particular park, or to a particular location within a park. Not all uses are appropriate or allowable in units of the national park system, and what is appropriate may vary from one park to another and from one location to another within a park... When proposed park uses and the protection of park resources and values come into conflict, the protection of resources and values must be predominant. A new form of park use may be allowed within a park only after a determination has been made in the professional judgment of the superintendent that it will not result in unacceptable impacts." (Emphasis added)

The NPATMA established procedural requirements for allowing air tours over parks; however, the Act does NOT mandate that commercial air tours are appropriate and must be allowed. In fact, section (b)(3)(A) of the Act provides that the agencies "may prohibit commercial air tour operations over a national park in whole or in part." Under the Act, air tours are essentially a discretionary activity subject to agency approval. To our knowledge, NPS has never formally considered or determined whether commercial air tours are an appropriate use of (or over) BADL. As a result, we strongly recommend that the EA be amended (e.g., through errata or as an appendix) to include an appropriate use analysis as described in Management Policies Section 1.5. Given the many adverse impacts of air tours that are described in the EA, we would expect that such an analysis would find that commercial air tours are NOT an appropriate use of (or over) BADL.

5. The eventual decision document for the ATMP should include an “impairment determination” for the proposed action - NPS Management Policies Section 1.4.7, states, in part: “Before approving a proposed action that could lead to an impairment of park resources and values, an NPS decision-maker must consider the impacts of the proposed action and determine, in writing, that the activity will not lead to an impairment of park resources and values. If there would be an impairment, the action must not be approved.” (Emphasis added) Furthermore, “[t]he impact threshold at which impairment occurs is not always readily apparent. Therefore, the Service will apply a standard that offers greater assurance that impairment will not occur. The Service will do this by avoiding impacts that it determines to be unacceptable. These are impacts that fall short of impairment, but are still not acceptable within a particular park's environment.” (Emphasis added) As a result, we strongly recommend that the eventual decision document, presumably a Finding of No Significant Impact (FONSI), includes an impairment determination as described in Management Policies Section 1.4.7.

6. Section 8.0 (“Amendment”) of the ATMP itself should be revised - We have a significant concern about Section 8.0 in the proposed ATMP. This section of the ATMP is not described in the EA. The boilerplate language used in Section 8 (ATMP p. 6) states that “the ATMP may be amended at any time” (emphasis added) if either NPS or the FAA notifies the other agency. We imagine that the Amendment clause is intended to convey the concept that the ATMP could be updated and revised if/when the agencies determine it is needed and appropriate; and we fully understand that all management plans are subject to future change.

However, the use of the words “at any time” creates the distinct impression that reversal of the final ATMP decision and/or resumption of air tours at BADL could happen on relatively short-notice (i.e., “at any time”). Such wording suggests there is little certainty that elimination of air tours at BADL would be a durable decision (since it could be changed “at any time”). In our view, creating such uncertainty in the ATMP unnecessarily invites industry appeals and/or political intervention on behalf of air tour operators. Our observation has been that many NPS management decisions that curtail or eliminate controversial recreational and commercial activities in parks, such as off-road vehicle (ORV) use, hunting, and in this case commercial air tours, are often subject to industry lobbying and/or political reversal, especially if/when there is a change in administration.

Over 20 years after the passage of the NPATMA, litigation was needed to force the agencies to finally prepare the required ATMPs. Moving forward, it is critical that the new ATMPs are widely viewed as providing for consistent long-term air tour management at the individual parks involved, rather than leave room for uncertainty. Toward that end, we recommend that the agencies revise the wording of Section 8.0 of the ATMP itself to state the following:

(add new first sentence) This ATMP will remain in effect until amended or terminated by mutual agreement of the agencies. This ATMP may be amended at any time (i.e., delete: “at any time”); if the NPS, by notification to the FAA and the operator(s), determines that the ATMP is not adequately protecting Park resources and/or visitor enjoyment; if the FAA, by notification to the NPS and the operator(s), determines that the ATMP is adversely affecting aviation safety and/or the national aviation system; or, if the agencies determine that appropriate changes to this ATMP are necessary to address new information or changed circumstances.

These minor revisions would affirm the intended stability and longevity of the ATMP; and refocus the Amendment provision on the limited circumstances that could justify reconsideration of the ATMP, rather than on the infinite possibility of amending the ATMP.

SECTION-BY-SECTION COMMENTS

Chapter 1

1. Section 1.4 Purpose and Need - As explained in General Comment # 2 above, compliance with the NPS Organic Act (54 USC §100101) is integral component of the National Parks Air Tour Management Act (49 USC §40128), yet the EA barely mentions the Organic Act or its relevance. As stated in EA section 1.4, “The purpose of the ATMP is to comply with the Act and other applicable laws. . . .” (Emphasis added) This would seem to be the perfect opportunity to identify the “other applicable” laws, such as the NPS Organic Act and the BADL enabling legislation, that the agencies may have considered during the development of the ATMP. This could be addressed by providing a brief summary of “other applicable laws” in Chapter 1 or as an appendix to the EA.

2. Section 1.5 Environmental Impact Categories Not Analyzed in Detail - As described in this section, the agencies have appropriately identified a number of impact categories that were considered but not analyzed in detail. In our view, the dismissed categories are generally not relevant or significant to the analysis; and the impact categories that have been carried forward for detailed analysis in the EA include the most relevant or significant impact topics for the analysis that follows in Chapter 3 of the EA.

Chapter 2

1. Section 2.1 Alternatives Development - We appreciate the detailed description of how the ATMP preliminary alternatives were developed primarily by an NPS inter-disciplinary team and then reviewed by the FAA. We also appreciate the detailed references to the Park's Foundation Document purposes and management objectives, which helped inform development of the alternatives. In general, we believe that the agencies have developed and considered an appropriate range of alternatives. It also is very appropriate that the alternative of “Air Tours Above Existing Levels or Air Tours at Existing Levels with Current Operating Parameters” was eliminated from further study for the reasons stated in Section 2.2.1.

2. Section 2.4 Alternative 1 (No Action Alternative) - As described in this section, “[t]he No Action Alternative represents a continuation of what is currently flown under existing conditions. . . .” We strongly agree with the statement that “[t]he No Action Alternative provides a basis for comparison but is not a selectable alternative because it does not meet the purpose and need for the ATMP (refer to Section 1.4, Purpose and Need).” (Emphasis added) It is evident from the impact analysis of the No Action Alternative in Chapter 3 that the existing air tour situation at BADL is causing unacceptable impacts to park resources and values that are supposed to be conserved unimpaired under the NPS Organic Act.

3. Section 2.5 Alternative 2 (Preferred Alternative) - As described, Alternative 2 would prohibit commercial air tours within the ATMP planning area no later than 180 days after the ATMP is signed by all required signatories from both agencies. We strongly support the selection of Alternative 2 as the Preferred Alternative for the reasons described in the EA, which are: Alternative 2 provides the greatest level of protection for the purposes, resources, and values of the Park as well as Park management objectives; and is most responsive to tribal concerns.

Chapter 3

Chapter 3 includes comparative analyses of the respective alternatives on various impact categories (i.e., resources or uses that would be affected by air tours) at BADL. Nearly every analysis indicates that Alternative 2, the elimination of air tours at BADL, would provide the greatest level of protection and/or restoration of resources at the Park. Our comments below are focused on the impact categories that we believe would receive the most significant benefits of implementing Alternative 2.

1. Section 3.1 Noise and Noise-Compatible Land Use - This section includes appropriate references to relevant FAA and NPS policies. Specifically, FAA Order 1050.1F, paragraph 11-5.b(10) defines a noise sensitive area as “[a]n area where noise interferes with normal activities associated with its use. Normally, noise sensitive areas include residential, educational, health, religious structures and sites, parks, recreational areas, areas with Wilderness characteristics, wildlife refuges, and cultural and historical sites.” (Emphasis added) In other words, the entirety of BADL is considered a noise sensitive area under the FAA order and should be protected accordingly.

NPS Management Policies (2006) Section 4.9, Soundscape Management, directs the NPS to preserve soundscapes and the acoustic environment to the greatest extent possible and to restore these resources to their natural condition wherever they have become degraded by noise and unwanted sounds. In other words, NPS management policies direct NPS to restore the natural soundscape at BADL that has been adversely impacted by air tour noise.

Section 3.1's comparative analysis of the noise levels likely to be caused by the respective alternatives strongly supports Alternative 2 (the NPS Preferred Alternative) as the alternative with the greatest likelihood of restoring the natural soundscape at BADL, consistent with FAA Order 1050.1F and NPS Management Policies Section 4.9. In contrast, other alternatives would perpetuate noticeable levels of air tour noise disturbance.

2. Section 3.3 Biological Resources - This section includes analyses of the potential impacts of air tours biological resources, specifically Animalia, including multiple species that are federally listed as threatened or endangered. As described in the analysis, multiple protected bird, mammal, and insect species are adversely impacted by aircraft noise. We are particularly concerned about the impacts of helicopter noise disturbance on Bighorn Sheep lambs during the spring, as the Bighorn Sheep herd at Badlands NP is currently under extreme stress with the effects of a lung infection epidemic that has had a high mortality rate.

In essence, Alternative 2 (elimination of air tours) would provide the greatest level of protection to the Park's biological resources and would likely "have no effect on federally listed threatened or endangered species." See EA Appendix H. For these reasons, we fully support selection and implementation of Alternative 2.

3. Section 3.4 Cultural Resources - The National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA), 54 U.S.C. §§ 300101 et seq., is comprehensive federal preservation legislation intended to protect cultural resources. Section 106 of the NHPA (54 U.S.C. § 306108), as implemented in 36 CFR Part 800, requires federal agencies to consider the effects of undertakings on historic properties, should any such properties exist. In addition to Section 106 of the NHPA, the NPS's Organic Act* and Section 110 of the NHPA apply to and provide for the preservation of historic, ethnographic and cultural resources on parkland. (*This is a rare instance in which the EA actually mentions the NPS Organic Act.)

Table 15 in the EA identifies 21 cultural resources within the Area of Potential Effect (APE), inclusive of ethnographic resources, traditional cultural properties (TCPs), sacred sites, cultural landscapes, historic districts, and prehistoric and historic buildings and structures that have been previously documented in the APE or identified through consultation. Cultural resources of importance to Native American tribes are particularly noteworthy. The Lakota and many other tribes consider the continuous landscape extending from the Black Hills to the Park sacred, and Bear Butte at the northeast edge of the Black Hills is a popular worship site. The region was used by numerous Native American tribes for resource gathering, especially for timber, and for religious purposes. For the purposes of this draft EA, the agencies assume that all lands within the Park have spiritual and sacred qualities and consider the entire Park a TCP.

As described in the EA, the elimination of commercial air tours from the ATMP planning area would reduce the direct noise and visual intrusions from impacting the feeling and setting of cultural resources within the APE and result in beneficial impacts to ethnographic resources and sacred sites, TCPs, archeological resources, cultural landscapes, historic districts, and prehistoric and historic buildings and structures compared to the No Action Alternative. In other words, Alternative 2 would provide the greatest level of protection for the diverse cultural resources within the APE. For this reason, we fully support selection and implementation of Alternative 2 as it would be the most appropriate alternative to implement under applicable NHPA, FAA, and NPS cultural resource guidelines and policies.

4. Section 3.5 Wilderness - The Wilderness Act of 1964 is the primary federal legislation regulating the management of designated Wilderness areas. In 1976, Congress designated 64,250 acres of the North Unit of the Park as the Badlands Wilderness. The Badlands Wilderness is divided into two geographically separate units, referred to by the NPS as the Sage Creek Unit and Conata Basin Unit. While Wilderness is not an impact category FAA traditionally examines, as a land management agency, the NPS is required to preserve Wilderness character.

NPS Management Policies (2006), § 6.1. states: "The purpose of Wilderness in the national parks includes the preservation of Wilderness character and Wilderness resources in an unimpaired condition." As described in NPS Director's Order # 41, Section 6.2, Wilderness character is the combination of biophysical, experiential, and symbolic ideals that distinguishes wilderness from other lands. The five qualities of wilderness character are (1) untrammeled, (2) undeveloped, (3) natural, (4) offers outstanding opportunities for solitude or primitive and unconfined recreation, and (5) other features of scientific, educational, scenic, or historical value.

Air tours would have no direct effect on the "untrammeled" and "undeveloped" qualities of the Badland Wilderness; while potential impacts to "other features" (e.g., cultural resources) are evaluated elsewhere in the EA. As a result, the EA analysis focuses on potential impacts to the "natural" and "solitude" qualities of Wilderness character. As described in this section of the EA, commercial air tours primarily impact the "natural" and "solitude" qualities of Wilderness character at BADL, while impacts to "other features" (e.g., cultural resources) are evaluated elsewhere in the EA. The analysis indicates that Alternative 2 (elimination of air tours) would provide the lowest level of air tour noise intrusion into Wilderness areas of the park and therefore would provide the greatest level of protection to Wilderness character. As a result, we fully support Alternative 2 as the most appropriate alternative to implement under applicable NPS wilderness stewardship policies.

5. Section 3.6 Visitor Use and Experience and Other Recreational Opportunities - While visitor experience is not an impact category the FAA traditionally examines, the NPS has agency wide guidelines (e.g., NPS Management Policies § 8.2, 2006) for managing visitors within the National Park System. This section also examines impacts to air tour customers.

Existing air tours at BADL are concentrated over the northeast corner of the Park and directly impact visitor experience in the area of the Park with the highest visitation, including the Cedar Pass Area.

Between 2017 and 2019, the Park averaged 1.01 million recreational visitors annually, with the peak times being June to September which accounts for more than 75% of visitors each year (NPS, 2018b). During that same period, an average of 1,425 air tour flights occurred annually over the Park. Reporting data from 2017-2019 indicates that on a peak month average day, air tours fly over the ATMP planning area approximately 17 times per day. (EA p. 122).

The visual and noise intrusions of helicopter overflights inevitably have impacts, mostly negative, on the experience of many park visitors. As a result, every alternative that would allow continued helicopter tours at BADL at any level would adversely impact the experiences of a high number of park visitors on the ground, while providing an air tour experience to a comparatively limited number of air tour customers annually. How is it acceptable for the possibly positive experiences of several people on a helicopter tour to negatively impact dozens or hundreds of other park visitors on the ground? For these reasons, we fully support the "elimination of air tours" as the most appropriate alternative to implement at BADL.

6. Section 3.8 Visual Effects - As described in this section, visual character refers to the overall visual makeup of the existing environment at Badlands National Park where the alternatives would be located. Visual resources are a key element within the Cedar Pass Developed Area landscape. Other opportunities within the Park for visitors to observe scenic viewsheds and wildlife include Loop Road, the primary road for sightseeing, where visitors can view the Badlands, its rock formations, and the prairie ecosystem.

Studies indicate that aircraft noise in national parks can impact human perceptions of aesthetic quality of viewsheds (Weinzimmer et al., 2014; Benfield et al., 2018). Under existing conditions, commercial air tours are flown near Park viewsheds along Loop Road and Sage Creek Rim Road. In general, commercial air tours detract from the visitor's opportunity to observe these resources when commercial air tours are present (which occurs 17 times per day during a peak month average day).

The comparative analysis clearly indicates that Alternative 2 (elimination of air tours) would provide the greatest level of protection to the park's visual resources; and therefore it is most appropriate for the agencies to select and implement Alternative 2.

7. Section 3.10 Summary of Environmental Consequences - Table 18 provides a side-by-side comparison of the environmental consequences for each of the alternatives considered across each environmental impact category. This comparison provides overwhelming evidence that Alternative 2, elimination of air tours, would provide the greatest level of protection to or within the various impact categories analyzed in the EA. For these reasons, we strongly support selection and implementation of Alternative 2, which would eliminate air tours at BADL.

CLOSING COMMENT

In closing, we greatly appreciate that the agencies have prepared a proper EA that evaluates the impacts of a range of air tour alternatives at Badlands National Park. The information and analysis provided in the EA provide overwhelming evidence that Alternative 2, elimination of air tours, is the most appropriate alternative to implement at the park. We appreciate the opportunity to comment on this important issue.

Correspondence: The NO FLY alternative to eliminate the commercial overflight nuisance is the absolute best option for the Badlands Wilderness and nonwilderness areas.

From the start, one of the options in NPATMA has been that an ATMP may prohibit commercial air tour operations entirely. There is no more worthy place than a National Park with wilderness character and culturally important history.

To think that flying around the perimeter preserves quiet is counter to the purpose of preserving natural sounds, in favor of the convenience of a commercial tour.

The comment introduction asks of us, what other suggestions do we have?

It seems there is a perfect opportunity for education about why quiet and natural sounds are important in all of our parks. The operators have the rest of the skies, and no one thinks about the noise of aircraft as something they are seeking when visiting a national park.

Our tax dollars go towards preserving these special places as they were for future generations - no for the a company to take advantage of - for private gain.

Thank you.

Re: Draft Air Tour Management Plan and Environmental Assessment for Mount Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park

Dear NPS Director Sams and FAA Acting Administrator Trottenberg:

Since 1919, National Parks Conservation Association (NPCA) has been the leading voice of the American people in protecting and enhancing our National Park System. On behalf of our nearly 1.6 million members and supporters nationwide, we provide comments on the Draft Air Tour Management Plan (ATMP) and Environmental Assessment (EA) for Mount Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park. We submit one letter in regard to both ATMP/EAs given the common analysis and outcomes in both.

The Draft ATMPs for Badlands and Mount Rushmore uphold legal mandates:

We support the agencies' decision to prohibit air tours in both park units in order to protect natural sounds, visitor experiences, Tribal sacred sites and ceremonial areas, natural and cultural resources, wildlife, and wilderness resources and values. We agree that commercial air tours: 1) result in unacceptable impacts to the aforementioned resources and people; and 2) do not support the management objectives of the parks.

We appreciate how clearly and accurately the National Air Tour Management Act of 2000 and implementing regulations are applied to both parks. See 49 USC §40128 and 14 CFR Part 136, Commercial Air Tours and National Parks Air Tour Management. These laws are intended to protect national parks, not promote commercial air tours. We agree with the ATMPs conclusions that air tours cause unacceptable impacts to park resources, visitors and Indigenous communities that utilize the parks.

Existing air tours are impairing park resources and conditions and thus are also contrary to the NPS Organic Act of 1916. NPS' mission as managers of national park sites is "to conserve the scenery and the natural and historic objects and the wild life therein and to provide for the enjoyment of the same in such manner and by such means as will leave them unimpaired for the enjoyment of future generations" (16 U.S.C. 1). The proposed ATMPs seek to carry out the mandates of the Organic Act because they ensure resources are conserved and remain unimpaired.

Draft ATMP protects park resources at Badlands National Park:

The ATMP covers the entire national park, both North and South Units, even though air tours have not been allowed in the South Unit.

Badlands National Park was first established in 1939 as a monument and then redesignated as a national park in 1978. The park was expanded in 1968 to include 133,000 acres, creating the South Unit of the park comprised of tribal lands, which are part of the Pine Ridge Reservation. Today the park is comprised of over 242,000 acres, 64,144 of which is designated wilderness. See South Unit General Management Plan, Executive Summary, page 3 (2012).

Based on the enabling legislation for the park and other governing laws, NPS documents note that Badlands is to be managed to accomplish the following: protect the unique landforms and scenery of the White River Badlands; preserve and interpret the history, culture and heritage of the Sioux Nation and Lakota peoples; provide for scientific research of the paleontological and geological resources; preserve the flora and fauna of the mixed grass prairie ecosystem; preserve the Badlands wilderness area; and interpret the archeological and contemporary history of settlement within the park. See Badlands GMPs, North (2005) and South Unit (2012) at 9-10 and 12, respectively.

For the following reasons, we support the Draft ATMP and Preferred Alternative in the Draft EA for Badlands:

- Importantly, the agencies used a specific baseline for natural sounds. The ATMP states, "The Park's ambient acoustic environment is very quiet, typically ranging between 22-27 decibels. . ." (page 4). This is a clear statement that preserving the sounds of nature is the predominant standard for judging whether Badlands is protected;
- Furthermore, when considering other flight paths, the ATMP emphatically refuses to redirect flights over congressionally designated wilderness. It states, "Eliminating air tour noise over designated Wilderness areas will help preserve Wilderness character and values associated with natural soundscapes such as solitude or primitive and unconfined recreation, including remoteness from sights and sounds; untrammelled or wildness; and naturalness" (page 5). Allowing commercial air tours in Wilderness is a non-starter;

- The ATMP highlights concerns about wildlife sensitive to noise including bighorn sheep and peregrine falcons. To ensure their continued survival, the ATMP essentially uses a precautionary principle to protect lambing season and general habitat; and
- The ATMP adheres to the serious concerns about commercial air tours from Northern Plains Tribes including the Oglala Lakota who co-manage the South Unit with the National Park Service. The plan states, "Tribes have articulated strong opposition to air tours over the Park because of their effects to the cultural landscape, wildlife, and plants, and concerns over privacy during traditional cultural practices and ceremonies within the ATMP boundary" (page 5). The sheer number of Tribes with connections to the park made it near impossible for the ATMP to suggest any mitigation that would respect the sacred lands.

Draft ATMP protects park resources at Mount Rushmore National Memorial:

Millions of people travel to South Dakota's beautiful Black Hills to learn about America's history in the shadow of Mount Rushmore's distinctive mountains amid sprawling pine forests. The Black Hills are known for its forested landscape, mostly wilderness with large granite outcrops and peaks. The lands are sacred to Northern Plains Tribal Nations, including the Lakota. Mount Rushmore and the Black Hills are sacred spaces for living cultures whose legacies still thrive today.

Many visit the park to see the sculpture of past Presidents carved into the mountain, seeking interpretative tours and learning opportunities. Part of the Memorial's purpose is to commemorate the founding and unification of the United States by preserving, protecting, and interpreting the mountain sculpture in its cultural and natural setting. Foundation Document: Mount Rushmore National Memorial at 5 (2015). Mount Rushmore is an internationally recognized symbol, representing the ideals of freedom and democracy.

For the following reasons, we support the Draft ATMP and Preferred Alternative in the Draft EA for Mt. Rushmore:

- Interpretative programs are a key element to the visitor experience at Mt. Rushmore. Commercial air tours are noisy at levels that exceed the ability for people to carry on a conversation. The ATMP states, "The visitor experience at the Park has been severely impacted by air tour noise, which is contrary to the Park's purpose. These impacts are supported by modeling results and verbal complaints received by Park staff" (page 4);
- Noise has a direct negative impact on wildlife species in the park unit. In particular, the ATMP states, "...the state listed threatened peregrine falcon, which is highly susceptible to noise disturbance. A peregrine pair nested at the Park in 2020 and had four chicks, none of which survived. Stressors such as air tour noise could impact recovery of this struggling population" (page 4). The ATMP must use the precautionary principle to ensure wildlife have the conditions and habitat to thrive; and
- The ATMP adheres to the serious concerns about commercial air tours from Northern Plains Tribes. It states, "...the Tribes have repeatedly stated that they are against all air tours in the areas they hold sacred, including over the Park... Tribes consider the entire landscape of the Black Hills to be sacred and believe air tours are inappropriate and constitute an adverse effect to the cultural landscape, wildlife and plants" (page 4). The sheer number of Tribes with connections to the park made it near impossible for the ATMP to suggest any mitigation that would respect the sacred lands.

Conclusion:

NPCA is supportive of the fact the ATMPs clearly state a prohibition on new entrant operators that may want to conduct commercial air tours in the future (Draft ATMPs at 6.0). To sustain the protection and preservation of Badlands National Park and Mount Rushmore, it is critical the agencies do not intend to allow commercial air tours in the future.

We do understand commercial air tours will likely continue outside the ATMP boundaries for both park units. The National Park Service Management Policies provide guidance for park managers when an activity outside park boundaries impacts park resources and values. See NPS Management Policies 2006 at Section 1.6 (pp. 13-14). We strongly recommend the agencies engage and consult with other jurisdictions to urge protection for natural and cultural resources that affect the parks.

Thank you.

Correspondence: I support and applaud the NPS preferred alternative.

Commercial air tours are not compatible with the protection of park resources. They disturb the vast majority of park visitors and sensitive wildlife species.

I commend NPS and hope the preferred alternative will be approved and successfully implemented.

Thank you very much.

Badlands National Park ATMP.

Dear Ms. Rimol:

The South Dakota Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources (DAN)

appreciates the opportunity to review the above-referenced project. This project borders tribal lands so we recommend you also contact the Oglala Sioux Tribe Environmental Director and the EPA Region 8 coordinator. Based on the information provided, we have compiled information that may be beneficial to your project.

Air Quality

Based on the information provided, it appears this project will have minor impacts to air quality in South Dakota. This impact would be through source and fugitive emissions. Fugitive emissions, although not covered under State air quality regulations, are a common source of public concern and may be subject to local or county ordinances. For further air quality information, please contact Rick Boddicker, Air Quality Program, telephone number 605-773-3151.

Drinking Water

Based on the information provided, this project will not have adverse environmental effects to drinking water in this area. Should the parameters of your project change, please reach out to Mark Mayer at 605-773-6039 or Mark. Mayer@state.sd.us.

Groundwater

Based on the information provided, this project is unlikely to have adverse effects on ground water quality. Should the parameters of your project change, please reach out to Matt Hicks at 605-773-5337 or Matt.

Hicks@state.sd.us. If this project impacts tribal lands, DAN recommends you also consult the tribe's environmental coordinator for any additional conditions.

Solid and Hazardous Waste

It appears, based on the information provided, that this project will have little or no impact on solid waste management in this area. It is not expected that any hazardous waste sites will be encountered within the vicinity of your project area. To determine whether your project may generate hazardous waste, visit:

<https://www.epa.gov/hwgenerators/managing-your-hazardous-waste-guide-small-businesses>. If you have any questions regarding the state's hazardous waste regulations, please contact Anthony Wagner at 605-773-3153, or anthony.wagner@state.sd.us.

Demolition or renovation of a building structure may be subject to the National Emission Standards for Hazardous Air Pollutants. If demolition or renovation is part of this construction project, or if the scope of the project changes to include demolition or renovation, please contact Kristin Jendrek, U.S. EPA Region 8, at (303) 312-6126 or Jendrek.Kristin@epa.gov.

Tanks and Spills

The Inspection, Compliance, and Remediation Program (ICRP) maintains a database of spills/environmental events, including petroleum and chemical releases, as well as registered storage tanks within South Dakota. Our records show numerous known spills/environmental events and registered storage tank facilities near the project area.

For information about spills/environmental events or registered tanks in South Dakota, please visit the following website: <https://apps.sd.gov/nr42interactivemap>.

Please be advised any licensed aircraft operator with fuel storage may be subject to the state's storage tank regulations. Operators should contact the DAN Storage tank Section to determine requirements for their tanks. Further, if any operator licensed to perform tours encounters or causes a hazardous materials release, it must immediately be reported to the applicable regulatory agencies. Spills/releases can be reported to DAN at 605-773-3296 (or 605-773-3231 after hours). DAN requires the party most responsible for the release and/or the tank owner perform the cleanup work. If you have questions, please contact Baylee Hoff at baylee.hoff@state.sd.us or (605) 773-3296.

Thank you for providing DAN the opportunity to comment on this project. If you have any questions regarding the information provided, please contact me at 605-773-3296.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.
For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.
Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.
We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.
We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: RE: Badlands National Park Air Tour Management Plan (ATMP) Comment

I would like to comment on the proposed ATMP for the Badlands National Park. I have viewed the Badlands National Park via helicopter several times. This experience is a once in a lifetime opportunity for many people and provides a very positive experience at the Badlands National Park. This experience cannot be duplicated any other way and is a critical option for the physically handicapped to experience this national treasure.

In careful review of the ATMP document I have many concerns that I will outline below:

- There has been helicopter tours over the badlands for close to 50 years. In that same period automobile ownership has increased over 6 times. The logic that follows would equate to that in those 50 years automotive traffic has increased by 6 times through the Badlands National Park. In that same time there has only been one helicopter operator over the Badlands which equates to a minimal increase in air traffic over the Badlands. Due to these assumptions, it is obvious that all listed impacts to wildlife, cultural and wilderness experience are coming from automobile traffic, certainly not from the single helicopter flying over the park.

- Annually there have been over 750,000 people who have attended the Sturgis Motorcycle Rally, and the Rally averages over 500,000 people each year. A major trip for these attendees is a drive through the Badlands National Park. Even if it as low as 25% of those in attendance make this very popular trip, it equates to over 100,000 people, or greater than 50,000 motorcycles traveling through the park in a two-week period. This again equates to the concerns of any impact that a single helicopter has to native wildlife, cultural impacts and wilderness character are miniscule in comparison.

- Helicopter operator has always worked in conjunction and at times for the Park Service in the Badlands. Having a Helicopter within minutes of any emergency in the Park is a valued asset that cannot be duplicated if all air traffic is halted.

- The ATMP is extremely discriminatory to the physically disabled. The helicopter tours are by far the best way for these people to see this National Park.

- The ATMP is extremely discriminatory to one business operator by singling out that no air traffic is allowed within ½ mile of the park. This document infringes on private land and business owners' ability to make a living and enhance visitor experience to the National Park.

- Upon thorough review of the ATMP document it appears to be based on conjecture and is not based on studies, facts or figures. How can such drastic decisions be based on so little actually research data?

In summary, this ATMP document is extremely discriminatory, and the concerns listed are proven to be totally not applicable to the single helicopter flying over the park. This ATMP also severely impacts private land and business owners in the area. THIS ATMP HAS NO BASIS FOR MOVING FORWARD AND SHOULD BE REJECTED.

Thank you,

Linda C Masters

Correspondence: These comments apply to the ATMP for Badlands National Park. Seeing Badlands National Park by helicopter is an amazing experience. The park comes to life in a way not visible from the ground. Do you really want to deny people the experience of seeing that beauty? For some people with disabilities this is the only way to truly enjoy the park.

I have experienced the Badlands both on foot, traveling to the park by automobile and also by air - two very different experiences. On foot, the trails have limited access, are noisy and people are everywhere. Also, the summer temperatures can make an outdoor experience in the park unbearable. By air, a visitor to the area can enjoy the vastness and beauty of the park without all the people.

In the 60 plus years that I have visited the park I have seen an exponential increase in the number of cars and people in the park. Motorcycle traffic has also increased dramatically, especially during the Sturgis rally. These vehicles create unbearable noise for other visitors and wildlife in the area. According to the ATMP there is one helicopter selling rides over the Badlands, and then only over a limited area. The number of rides possible in a day has not changed over time.

I understand the importance of recognizing and preserving Native American sacred sites. In my observation many of the visitors in the park are not aware of the fragile nature of the Badlands and the wildlife living within the park.

To truly provide a National Park experience for all, it is important to allow a variety of access methods. A short trip by helicopter is an important access method.

This ATMP discriminates exclusively against one business and therefore one form of visitation. The current helicopter operators work closely with Park staff to ensure compliance with NPS rules and to provide accurate information about the Park.

For these reasons, it is important that this ATMP be rejected.

Correspondence: I go to national parks to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife and experience the peace and connectedness of being in nature.

That is why I strongly agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by the noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Just because these national parks can be viewed from the air doesn't mean they should. The noise pollution for the vast majority who either can't afford or don't wish to participate in this indulgence shouldn't be allowed to disrupt the experience for the vast majority of visitors. And that is even minor compared to the disturbance to the wildlife.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: What a great step forward that would be if air tours were no longer allowed over national parks. The noise alone makes it impossible for visitors to hear rangers and the wildlife DOES NOT NEED noise generated machines hovering over their habitats. Silence is golden!!!

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Subject: Protect visitors and wildlife at the Badlands from air tour noise pollution -- Air Tour Management Plan for Badlands National Park

To Badlands National Park Superintendent Eric Veach:

I strongly support the recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Badlands National Park. National parks are places people go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation.

Unfortunately, commercial air tours have been flying directly over locations where many ground-based visitors gather to enjoy Badlands National Park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours and they shatter the Wilderness experience.

Wildlife--including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison, and bighorn sheep--are negatively impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Park's wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

Most visitors go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives--to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

I strongly support the recommendation to eliminate air tours over and near Badlands National Park.

Thank you for your consideration of my comments. Please do NOT add my name to your mailing list. I will learn about future developments on this issue from other sources.

Sincerely,

Christopher Lish

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: RE: Badlands National Park

Air Tour Management Plan

I would like to comment on the proposed ATMP for the Badlands National Park.

I have read through the proposal multiple times and I cannot find any documentation of factual information concerning Air Tours damaging the physical features of the park, the wildlife of the park nor the area cultures.

I personally have taken the tours and found them to greatly enhance the knowledge and experiences of my park visit. The pilots are highly trained professionals with a love of the area they get to share with their passengers. The safety of the visitors, the animals and the terrain of the park itself is their utmost priority. I feel that it allows the elderly and the physically disabled population to have more access to the beauty of the park

The inclusion of mandates for the surrounding private property is a whole other subject that leaves many questions of authority unanswered.

This is a major proposal with many questions left unanswered. Where are the studies, documentations and facts? There have been flights over the Badlands National Park for over 50 years, therefore giving the park service plenty of time to do their due diligence, which is seriously lacking.

It appears as if there should be a retreat from action on this unprecedented move.

Sincerely yours,

Terri L Lee

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

I have experienced the terrible noise and distraction of overhead flights at the Grand Canyon where the noise totally destroyed my experience. If people want to see a place they should get off their lazy fat asses and walk in to see it.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the Air Service over our national parks. One of the absolute joys of living in western South Dakota are the big skies and the quiet....yes, from the city noises...not the natural sounds that are present in abundance in these open spaces of birds, birds, and more birds....These spaces are almost sacred because they have become so very few. Please, consider the "no amendment"no amendment. Many thanks....

Correspondence: Kudos to NPS staff for this excellent EA and draft ATMP.

I reviewed these informative documents and I am grateful to those who prepared them.

I strongly support the NPS EA preferred alternative (Alternative 2) and the draft ATMP. I hope that NPS will approve and implement this long overdue and necessary ATMP to prohibit future commercial air tours.

I've heard and seen commercial air tours while visiting national parks. I found them to be annoying and incompatible with an appropriate park experience. Most park visitors cannot afford these tours and yet they are subjected to their impacts while visiting parks. This is unfair.

If people want to view national parks from the air, I think that NPS should consider taking some high-quality videos from an NPS administrative flight to show in the park visitor center and/or to sell DVDs in park visitor center gift shops. This would make such aerial park views available to a wider audience, and without the continued adverse impacts in the park. This would also reduce the burning of fossil fuels by aircraft over time, where such burning would contribute to the worsening climate crisis.

I commend NPS for this important work. Thank you very much for considering my input.

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

Wildlife, including eagles, peregrine falcons, bison and bighorn sheep are impacted by noise generated by air tours. Current air tour operations disturb the Parks wildlife and result in changes to behavior that could negatively impact their survival.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Correspondence: INTRODUCTION

Thank you for the opportunity to provide comments regarding the proposed Air Tour Management Plan (ATMP) for Badlands National Park (BDL). I understand that the FAA alongside the NPS has the authority to regulate Commercial Air Tours within ½ mile of any park unit boundary. The concept is reasonable and necessary and based in law as passed under the National Parks Air Tour Management Act of 2000. (NPATMA). I believe in the responsible operation of air tours over public lands. It should be limited and adjusted from time to time based on changing conditions.

After careful review of the documents produced by the NPS, I believe that the proposed 100% removal of Commercial Air Tours from BDL represents a significant overreach without accurate data-backed justification and without the required participation of key stakeholders. The use of outdated and incorrect data discriminates against the operators and the public. Air Tour Management Plans are not Air Tour Elimination Plans.

Additionally, I believe that the ATMP process as originally forced at seven parks (subsequently expanded) by the lawsuit against the FAA filed by Public Employees for Environmental Responsibility and Hawaii Island Coalition Malama Pono has not been conducted according to the requirements of NPATMA and has completely ignored safety and economic impact. The ATMP process is being implemented with a "check the box" method rather than a thoughtful plan that seeks to reduce impacts, improve safety, and maintain economic viability of long-standing private companies with millions invested in delivering world class ultra-low impact tour offerings. The assertion by FAA Environment and NPS staff that "Operators can simply repurpose aircraft" lack a fundamental understanding of business, and specifically helicopter operators. This dismissal of the impacts is offensive, and clearly highlights the lack of expertise at the table during the planning process.

Aerial Tours specifically, present the single lowest impact method of visitation to any park unit when operated responsibly and within agreed upon routes and altitudes. Helicopters do not leave anything behind, have a minimal impact to air quality, and do not require support staff or vehicles. We do not damage trails, create the need for trails, harass wildlife, leave human waste, damage roadways or other park infrastructure, require garbage removal, and introduce only sound to the environment which dissipates quickly. Helicopters do not need runways and airport infrastructure, limiting their overall impact even further.

The plans as proposed will create additional impacts that have specifically been excluded from the analysis. While Commercial Air Tours are being targeted, there are multiple commercial air transportation and utility flights that will be implemented by the operators to remain in business which NPATMA does not regulate and will operate within the boundaries of the affected parks. The EA dismisses this possibility as "unknowns", but rest assured this is an impact that must be considered and evaluated. I believe that moving forward without this analysis is irresponsible to all affected parties, to include all stakeholders.

If the impacts of these commercial flights are combined with Commercial Air Tours conducted outside of the ATMP area, the impacts will likely increase. This is especially true given the proximity to park borders that existing tours are operated.

Based on the above, I believe it is the best interest of the park units and operators to come to the table with Voluntary Agreements. The Voluntary Agreement is specifically allowed by the court order and by NPATMA. This Voluntary Agreement could address the very operations discussed above and allow the FAA and the NPS a say in how they are conducted. Failing to do so would remove the ability of the FAA and NPS outside of rule change, to regulate those operations. I believe it is in the best interest of the park units and the operators to exercise this option and give both sides an opportunity to work together to reduce impacts in a real way.

With regard to Voluntary Agreements, I just learned today from the owner of Eagle Aviation that such an Agreement was put on the table for Eagle Aviation in a meeting held at the Rapid City FSDO in 2021. The majority stakeholder (Badger Helicopters) was excluded from this meeting, and a separate meeting was not proposed or held for Badger Helicopters, despite the Voluntary Agreement desire being known by Keith Lusk. While more details are needed, this is a disturbing development that represents a significant concern about the process as a whole. The details and facts of this meeting will be discovered during the FOIA process which has been initiated but will obviously not be available prior to the expiration of the ATMP process. I believe a final ATMP must be delayed until this issue has been addressed. The 30-day comment period is simply not enough time for anyone to respond thoroughly to the volumes of data produced for comment.

I have significant concerns that members of, or donors to, Public Employees for Environmental Responsibility are potentially employed by and involved in the very agencies tasked with the completion of these plans, representing a serious conflict of interest. I believe this needs to be vetted thoroughly prior to the finalization of any documents related to ATMP.

All analysis for the proposed ATMP was produced "in house" and was not vetted by any third party for validity or method, which also represents a significant appearance of bias. Models used by the FAA for analysis are based upon airports, not specific models developed to measure impacts of Commercial Air Tours. This is discriminatory to operators and the public. Based on these facts alone, I believe this warrants a delay until these issues can be satisfied.

The ATMP Planning Process discriminates against the public in limiting its choices, and directly discriminates against mobility challenged individuals in their ability to enjoy our public lands in a method of their choosing. The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) was not consulted or reviewed in the formulation of the plan, as admitted by FAA staff during the May 24th "Public Meeting", and I believe this is something that should be addressed. Having "some" or even "most" areas of a visitor center accessible, does nothing to address access to ALL areas of a park unit. Before implementation, the ADA should be reviewed and considered in the formulation of any plan. This area of concern is ideally served through aerial tourism, providing access to ALL. I believe that one of the reduced alternatives or a Voluntary Agreement would be an excellent remedy to this concern.

NPATMA requires at least one meeting during the development of the plan to be held. This meeting was not held in any way, shape, or form. I reject the assertion by park staff that the public meetings in response to the DRAFT ATMP constitute this development meeting. Development means, during the process according to most definitions, and this did not occur. The ATMP has been developed. The issuance of a DRAFT ATMP is not development. I believe this to be a violation of the letter and spirit of NPATMA.

The agencies have failed to engage with NPOAG during this process. NPOAG was created to assist with this very process. By not working with this established resource and source of expertise, the ATMP process is evolving in an expertise vacuum. Neither the NPS or the FAA Environmental folks possess the expertise in operations or safety to a level that is needed for the development of these plans. This was admitted on more than one occasion during the "Public Meeting" held on May 24th.

I would ask that you consider the following arguments prior to issuing a final ATMP for Badlands National Park.

Noise

In the analysis under the impact of noise, the FAA and NPS fail to identify what "sound" (noise) is associated with the Parks. Some examples they give us are the native drumming at Yosemite National Park or the music at New Orleans Jazz National Historical Park.

The environmental assessment (EA) fails to analyze the possible benefits of any quiet technology (QT) under alternative 3 and 4. This failure prejudicially influences the results. Additionally, although alternative 2 (no air tours) would eliminate all air tour noises within the ATMP planning area, it may have the potential to cause air tours to begin outside of the ATMP planning area which was specifically excluded from analysis. This will cause new issues that could result in increased noise impacts when coupled with other commercially viable flight offerings the operators may engage in.

Unlike alternative 2, if the FAA was willing to enter into a Voluntary Agreement, it would be possible to influence operators to restrict air tours outside of the ATMP planning area in addition to decreasing the number of tours allowed per day.

Ultimately, it appears that the FAA and NPS recognize that alternative 3 and 4 would reduce the impact of noise to the park but decided that alternative 2 would eliminate it completely within the ATMP planning area. This is a false premise. Alternative 2 will not eliminate noise from the planning area at all, based on the geography and proximity that tours displaced from the ATMP area would operate. This was specifically excluded from the analysis. I believe this must be evaluated, and the DRAFT ATMP as proposed should not be put into place until these potential significant impacts are addressed.

The noise data as presented in the EA, which was prepared by sources within the government and was not reviewed by a third party, is outdated. I believe this represents significant bias, and the process should have third party oversight to remove this bias.

The base map for ambient noise was collected in 2003, and travel patterns have dramatically changed in the past 20 years. 20-year-old data is not contemporary or representative of current ambient noise. I would ask that new data be measured, in order to accurately model impacts. I would also ask that prior to implementation, an outside third party review the EA for accuracy and method.

The other data used to determine air tour impacts was based on incorrect assumptions of what Air Tour Operators are doing. It is fair to offer a challenge to the validity of the data, specifically within the last three years. Beginning in 2021, the altitudes flown over the park were increased and routes modified by the current operator in response to internal concerns from the new owners of Badger Helicopters, the majority holder of IOA for BDL. This action was unsolicited and was undertaken by the new owners of Badger Helicopters in order to provide an extra buffer for sound around certain park features.

The routes that were provided by the operators in years past are not contemporary, but to a smaller degree than altitudes. In both cases, had the correct routes and altitudes been evaluated, the EA would have reflected a lower impact than what is being claimed. I will stipulate that all non-natural sounds contribute to the soundscape, including helicopters. I believe the FAA and the NPS have hand-picked data to include/exclude, and the results do not present a true picture of unnatural sounds that are experienced in the park.

It should be noted that in the Appendices for the EA, the operators themselves were not listed as references. In the Appendix for the Mt Rushmore EA, Eagle Aviation was listed as a reference, but not any of the other companies that hold IOA. Based on this, it is hard to conclude where the information came from to formulate the parameters for analysis. I would request that the operators be engaged for accurate information for inclusion in the EA. Not completing this process is highly prejudicial to the operators and represents decisions made on faulty data.

The EA further discriminates in avoiding the evaluation of other sound sources not related to Commercial Air Tours. I believe all generators of unnatural sound should be analyzed to determine the true impact of helicopter sounds.

According to the EA, "A unique noise modeling profile was developed for each modeled aircraft and route combination based on typical aircraft climb rates, descent rates, power settings and speeds during the different phases of flight (cruise, climb, and descent)."

I find this to be general and ambiguous and may be inaccurate. The use of "typical" data should not be used to determine specific impacts. There are many parameters missing from the list of considerations such as temperature, wind velocity and density altitudes. Power settings as listed above are highly unlikely to be accurate based on company policies and procedures. All of these factors directly affect the noise that helicopters are capable of producing. Turns, climbs, descents, all play a role.

A study was commissioned by the Town of Keystone to measure noise generators in the town of Keystone. That study concluded that motorcycles were the top sound generator in the town. The operator flying from the Rushmore Heliport, takes off over town and is climbing out to their desired altitudes over the town of Keystone at much lower altitudes with higher power settings, and the motorcycle traffic still produced more noise. The noise from motorcycles lasts longer in the soundscape than does sound from a helicopter.

Furthermore, the references listed in the appendix for the EA also confirm this, but that was conveniently left out of or minimized in the EA. Badlands is a destination for motorcycles during the summer months when the helicopters are also operating. This has also grown exponentially since 2003, making the data used to model even more obsolete.

I would ask that the proposed ATMP not move forward until these corrections have been made and alternative courses of action have been evaluated.

Air Quality & Climate Change:

Although allowing air tours would cause some carbon monoxide (CO) omissions to result, none of the alternatives would cause pollutant concentrations to exceed one or more of the National Ambient Air Quality Standards (NAAQS) for any of the time periods analyzed. The operation of a single helicopter for Commercial Air Tours represents far less emission potential than any combination of ground-based vehicle traffic.

Furthermore, like the noise analysis, the EA recognizes the potential for tours to be flown outside of the ATMP Planning Area that may arise from the DRAFT ATMP, Air Quality is not measured or analyzed based on this. Furthermore, Air Quality benefits are ignored in the context of a Voluntary Agreement which could possibly reduce or eliminate tours outside of the ATMP Planning Area.

Ultimately, even though there are more emissions that result from Alternative 1, 3, and 4, such emission does not amount to any danger to the environment. Additionally, although Alternative 2 could result in the reduction of any CO being emitted within the ATMP planning area, it may also result in the increase of CO emissions outside the ATMP planning area. Such result may be more dangerous than the current emissions. Additionally, emissions from outside of the ATMP Planning Area would represent an impact inside of the ATMP Planning Area as a result of wind patterns. I believe this requires further analysis to include the displacement of Commercial Air Tours and the impact on the ATMP Planning Area.

Biological Resources

The two animals that I found to be the most important in the EA were the Tricolored Bat and the Peregrine Falcon. The Tricolored Bats are nocturnal mammals that forage at treetop level or over waterways and forest edges at dusk with slow, erratic flight patterns. Alternative 1, 2, 3, 4, and a Voluntary Agreement would all bring about the same result. Currently, contrary to numbers stated in the analysis, Commercial Air Tours are operated from 9:00 AM to 6 PM during the season in which they operate. This is far removed from Sunrise or Sunset, which would result in no disturbance during the bats' active hours.

Second, the Peregrine Falcon is a species that is considered threatened in the state of South Dakota. This species nests along remote cliffs and ledges, where their nests, called scrapes, are just small depressions in gravel. The nesting period for the Peregrine Falcon is commonly in the springtime. Furthermore, the EA identifies that although Peregrine Falcons have shown reactions to aircraft, they display stronger reactions and are therefore more sensitive to disturbance from humans, other animals, and boats than they were to overflights from helicopters. Additionally, when Peregrine Falcons were exposed to helicopters from 1,000 meters (3,281 ft) or less, only 2-3% of individuals had in-flight responses.

In conclusion, if the NPS was genuinely concerned about the impacts to biological resources, there are other actions that could be taken that would be more beneficial/efficient. Restricting access to areas where these animals are likely to reside in and changing park hours are good examples of actions that could be taken that would have a far greater benefit.

Furthermore, it is my opinion that the EA under this section is not convincing enough. The EA does not identify any concrete evidence that would show a strong relationship between air tours and impact to these animals. It merely points out basic information that is "somewhat" common sense. For example, it may be true that the sound (or even the sight) of a helicopter may make these animals more tense, however, the same can be said about hikers walking near these animal's habitat or a group of individuals that are too loud. (Bikers!) Or as is very common in all national parks, animals that are exposed to and conditioned to road noise and visitor interaction. In some places, the roads provide cover from predators. While not the case at Badlands, this is a phenomenon observed in other parks. The Bighorn Sheep, (this particular species is non-native to the park) are routinely lounging right next to the road without any observable issues. The same situation applies to Bison. In our National Parks, it is difficult to claim impact to most species. Yellowstone recently completed a study that found no net effect to animal populations due to snowmobile use. Anyone who has ever sat through a Bison or Bear Jam can testify to this.

Additionally, the DRAFT ATMP would (more likely than not) result in displaced Air Tours, which could be more harmful to animals that reside outside of the ATMP planning area for a few reasons:

1. The FAA would have less control over air tours that occur outside the ATMP planning area.

2. By eliminating air tours completely, operators will be forced to take new routes and, potentially, more frequently.
3. Biological resources outside of the ATMP Planning Area could be affected more adversely, as they are not conditioned to the presence of people and un-natural sounds at the same frequency currently.

Ultimately, Alternative 3, 4, or a Voluntary Agreement would provide the best opportunity to mitigate any potential impact that could exist.

Cultural Impacts

The EA in section 3.4 takes some significant liberties in the formulation of conclusions. None of the current tour flights take place over native lands as defined by federal law. Section 106 seeks to provide guidance for the establishment of cultural landscapes. In the EA, there have been no physical demonstrations of impact to sensitive cultural sites noted. Only references to "Feeling and Setting".

Adverse impacts to these resources would occur if the alternative would alter the characteristics of a cultural resource that contribute to its significance in a manner that diminishes the integrity of the resource's location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, or association. The EA determined that commercial air tours, by their nature, have the potential to impact resources for which feeling and setting are contributing elements, but offer no data to support actual impacts. A property will have integrity of "setting" if the physical features that define the area surrounding the property convey the essential character of the setting as it was during the period of significance, and "feelings" defined as a property that is able to express the aesthetic or historic sense of a particular period of time through its physical features retains integrity of feeling. Commercial Air Tours do not alter this setting. All of the other traffic through the park to include vehicles and pedestrians, do alter the setting.

However, integrity of "feeling," which depends on individual perception, is never sufficient to support eligibility on their own under section 106. Additionally, if the undertaking will have no effect on historic properties, a finding of "no historic properties affected is appropriate (e.g., project-related to noise that does not "permanently" alter a "setting" that contributes to the historic significance of a qualified historic property for the NRHP). Finally, the EA points out issues of "unreasonable interference with a tribes' connections to the sacred landscape," and it may impact the Park's historical, architectural, and archaeological resources. Use of the word may is inconclusive and should not be used to make decisions unless there is concrete data to support it.

Under the EA, the "setting" of the park is not identified with specificity. Moreover, it does not identify how much more damaging air tours are to the setting of the park compared to all the other activities in the park. I believe this section of the EA relies mostly on the "feeling" aspect of the park, which is completely perceptual. Throughout the section, the "feelings" of tribes and individual tribal members is emphasized. I believe that these feelings are cherry picked and not fully representative.

Furthermore, how will the noise of the air tour be detrimental to a tribes' ceremony that may be commencing? How will the visual effect of an aircraft intrude on the tribes' privacy whenever they are conducting their ceremony? These impacts are not demonstrated or quantified. The physical presence of people in the park represents a source of much greater impact, and Commercial Air Tours serve to lessen actual physical impacts.

Based on the analysis, air tours at worst have a significant impact on "feelings" as described by a select few who purport to speak for all, and no impact on "setting." As such, relying on section 106, this would not be enough to conclude that air tours have an adverse effect to the listed resources.

I believe that although the EA considers sacred sites, it technically should not carry that much weight when considering these types of resources under section 106. The number of meetings held with tribal interests is quite concerning, given that there are no tribal lands as defined by law associated with the ATMP planning area.

"For the purposes of this draft EA, the agencies assume that all lands within the Park have spiritual and sacred qualities and consider the entire Park a TCP."

None of the information in the EA cultural section results in a demonstrated impact. If air tours are removed from the ATMP area, all the same impacts exist if flights are flown outside of the ATMP area. Impacts could increase to sensitive cultural areas, as it seems they are not defined, and there is no requirement to define them. Mitigation becomes infinitely harder when the unknown is introduced.

I believe that if the cultural angle was a serious concern, the park shouldn't exist at all. Remove all of it. Using the same justifications to remove Commercial Air Tours, there isn't a single piece of park infrastructure that should exist. The elimination of air tours in the ATMP area does nothing to further the cultural cause of "Setting and Feeling". In fact, I would assert that the low impact nature of Commercial Air Tours could represent a decrease of impact to "Setting" as we never physically come in contact with any ground resource in the ATMP planning area. Tribal interests lack the authority or expertise to offer input on airspace issues.

Wilderness

While Wilderness is not an impact category the FAA traditionally examines, the Sage Creek and Conata Basin units in the park area are brought into the analysis.

The two qualities of the Wilderness character considered in the EA was "natural" and "solitude." A "natural" Wilderness is one where ecological system are substantially free from the effects of modern civilization--this quality is preserved when indigenous species and ecological processes are intact. And solitude is the ability for individuals to feel free, at peace, self-reliant, and able to observe landscapes without modern human effects.

Section 2(a) of the Wilderness Act states that Wilderness areas "shall be administered for the use and enjoyment of the American people in such manner as will leave them unimpaired for future use and enjoyment as Wilderness, and so as to provide for the protection of these areas, the preservation of their Wilderness character."

The EA determined that commercial air tours may impact the following qualities of Wilderness characters, including the opportunity for solitude, the natural quality, and other features of value (e.g., cultural resources). Further, commercial air tours can represent both a sight and sound of human activity and therefore detract from the solitude quality of Wilderness character.

However, at worst, air tours would have a minimal adverse effect on the Wilderness due to the amount of time they spend over the Wilderness area. Figure 19 incorrectly shows that the helicopters enter the wilderness. All tours are completed outside of the designated wilderness areas. This is another one of many inconsistencies that exist due to a lack of operator consultation.

Such an extreme response as the one in Alternative 2 would have little to no benefit to the Wilderness, because operators will still be able to operate in close proximity to, but not in the wilderness areas.

The best way to protect the Wilderness would be to enter into a Voluntary Agreement that would further offset flight paths from the wilderness areas and potentially increase altitudes of those routes.

Visitor Use & Experience & Other Recreational Opportunities

The EA determined that air tours have a negative effect on visitors' experience because it impacts their ability to enjoy the scene, the acoustic environment of the park, and their engagement with the Park's interpretive programs. The EA further recognizes that the primary adverse effect comes from the noise that air tours cause.

I do agree with the EA that the noise of air tours may present limited impacts to a visitor's experience, however, such impact alone does not call for implementing Alternative 2. The EA recognizes that air tours offer a recreational experience for those who wish to view the Park from a different vantage point but fails to recognize the opportunity it provides to those visitors that may have some sort of impairment (including elderly visitors). Although the Park's major locations are accessible for impaired visitors, they are unable to enter the majority of the wilderness-based trails. Only the Fossil Exhibit and Window Trails are fully accessible in the Badlands. Even though these individuals may not be able to go through the trails, air tours would provide a suitable low impact alternative for these individuals.

Additionally, the EA assumes that, under Alternative 2, operators will continue to give air tours outside of the ATMP planning area. The probability of operators shutting down air tours (or increasing their prices to accommodate for fewer tours) is a possibility. In this case, it would limit the ability for those visitors with impairments to experience the park fully. In addition, it would eliminate the ability for visitors to view the Park from the unique vantage point that air tours provide and limit choices.

Environmental & Socioeconomics

Socioeconomic impacts of the alternatives include the potential impacts commercial air tour operations have on two interest groups: 1) local residents living in close proximity to the Park, who may be affected by both the number of air tours and the manner in which they are conducted and air tour operators in South Dakota, specifically the two air tour operators with IOA for the Park and their employees, and the associated tourism industry.

The EA finds that environmental justice (EJ population) within the study area may currently experience impacts from noise, air quality, and visual effects associated with air tours conducted within the ATMP planning area under current conditions. The EA further summarizes that the modeled impacts of Alternative 1 (no action alternative) show that there are not disproportionately high and adverse noise, air quality, or visual effects to EJ population. This would then mean that Alternatives 3,4 and a Voluntary Agreement would also represent no adverse noise, air quality, or visual effects to the EJ population.

The EA does not adequately address the economic impacts to operators of Commercial Air Tours. The assertion that operators can simply repurpose their aircraft in other ventures is misguided and represents a lack of understanding in how helicopter operators' function, and the expenses they are exposed to when transitioning from one type of work to another. Aircraft, training, fuel, personnel, support equipment and other expenses are significant enough that air tour operators could be forced out of business.

Visual Effects

Visual resources include buildings, sites, traditional cultural properties, and other natural or manmade landscape features that are visually important or have unique characteristics. Impact to these visual resources and visual character relate to a "decrease in the aesthetic quality of the Park" resulting from air tours.

Like other aspects of the EA, visual effects are lacking in a description of actual impact. The way that the routes are currently flown, I do not see where a visual impact to the main featured views from any of the viewpoints in the park could be. Flights outside of Commercial Air Tours, illegal drone activity in the park and other aircraft would pose a greater impact to visual resources. We fly to the east of the road, as to not interrupt the views to the west.

The best way to assure visual impacts are minimized would be through the adoption of Alternative 1,3, or 4 or through a Voluntary Agreement that allows all participants to have a say in the formulation of routes to minimize perceived impacts.

Conclusion

Both Mt. Rushmore and Badlands' EA are eerily similar in scope and content. The two park units could not more different in size, scope, and environment. This is more evidence that the process is rushed and haphazard in its approach. Many of the analysis appears to be "cut and paste" to save time and effort.

The EA for Badlands discusses how air tours "could" or "may" adversely affect each section analyzed in the EA report. Furthermore, each alternative has its own downsides and benefits. It appears that alternative 2 was chosen simply because it eliminates air tours within the ATMP as driven by the agenda of the NPS.

However, the EA does not give any real consideration to what "could" or "may" happen if air tours outside of the ATMP planning area increase due to Alternative 2 being implemented in final form.

The best solution for all parties, which could ensure that concerns were addressed, and the unknowns could be documented and controlled, would be to enter into a Voluntary Agreement. This would allow Air Tours to be limited and could potentially provide an avenue for operators to voluntarily restrict flights outside of the ATMP, and voluntarily limit nonregulated flights into the ATMP area. Outside of this Agreement, I believe Alternative 2 will result directly in additional impacts that would exacerbate the impacts at t

Correspondence: One supports the NPS/FAA Preferred Alternative to eliminate commercial air tour flights over this "continuous and sacred landscape."

When we enter the Park through the welcoming Ben Reifel Visitor Center and on his road, we are guided by Ben's presence and those of his ancestry and their descendants who have had that connection to this landscape for ceremony, quest and reverence through millennia that informs and orients us to the way we should respect and interact with this place. This is a place that offers many levels of experience with inevitable cosmological dimension or equivalents.

Indeed, some of Ben's relatives have been represented in this process when the Rosebud Sioux representatives have said:

The Rosebud Sioux Tribe expressed that the sound from commercial air tours would have an effect on animals; the wind of helicopter blades would alter the seed distribution of the plant relatives; and that commercial air tours in general affect soundscapes when the Rosebud Sioux Tribe conducts ceremonies, and they should be able to conduct traditional practices without that kind of disruption.

The EA identifies the unacceptable impacts with the attention to the acoustic environment and the wilderness character, but inevitably to the sense of place that includes (in NPS terminology) cultural resources and related cultural landscapes and ethnographic resources that offer a distinctive ordering perspective for a Traditional Cultural Property that includes animals, plants and the sky !!

And indeed such cosmological importance of the sky is shared by other persons of faith around the world.

And the intrusion of a commercial air tour into this realm of higher power seems disrespectful, demeaning and sacrilegious.

Correspondence: Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the draft Air Tour Management Plan (ATMP) and Environmental Assessment (EA) for Badlands National Park (BADL). I commend the NPS and FAA for thoroughly analyzing the public scoping comments in creating the alternatives for the draft ATMP. Also, for in-depth tribal consultation which is significant in itself to ensure natural and cultural resource impacts were identified and mitigation addressed within the Preferred Alternative.

Also, thank you to the National Park Service (NPS) and Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) for hosting a virtual public meeting on May 24, 2023. The virtual meeting was very informative and advantageous in responding with comments for the draft ATMP and EA.

First of all, as the previous Superintendent of Mount Rushmore National Memorial (MORU) (2010-2019), I worked closely with NPS staff at BADL, NPS Natural Sounds and Overflights team, FAA and the air tour operators providing tours of both MORU and BADL. During my tenure we were working on Voluntary Air Tour Agreements for MORU and BADL. For over twenty years the process to prepare and implement air tour management plans in coordination with the FAA has been a slow, ever changing, evolving and challenging, as it was for MORU and BADL.

I am extremely supportive of the Preferred Alternative as identified in Chapter 2, Section 2.5. The prohibition of air tours over BADL within ½ mile of the park's boundary below 5,000 AGL is a very desirable alternative to protect the significant natural and cultural resources of BADL tribal resources and values, visitor experience and wilderness character. As stated in the draft EA, Chapter 2, Section 2.1, Alternative Developments, BADL's Foundation Document (2017) clearly describes the purpose for BADL and air tours are incongruous with the fundamental resources and values of BADL.

As stated in the FAQ section of supporting documents, air tour operators will still be able to offer air tours outside of the ATMP planning area and provide their guests with an air tour experience without significant impacts to BADL. Thus, the number of flights or operators would not be impacted by the Preferred Alternative.

The Preferred Alternative is the optimal choice to preserve and protect the incredible, irreplaceable park resources and provide outstanding visitor experiences for future generations.

Respectfully submitted,

Cheryl A. Schreier

Correspondence: As one of the cooperators (aka - tour operator) who has conducted aerial tours over Mt. Rushmore and Badlands national parks since before Congress mandated the ATMP development, I believe this proposed plan has nothing to do with Managing Air Tours but is a "CEASE AND DESIST PLAN". Our fixed-wing air tours have the lowest impact of any park visitation. We require no infrastructure support, no roads or trails, no erosion, no garbage removal, nothing!

As for the Northern Plains Tribal opposition to Air Tours.... in recent years they have been against everything that does not Bolster their Coffers, that's a fact.

The vehicle and foot traffic, as well as construction activities to support this, are certainly more devastating to any endangered species than my single engine, fixed-wing aircraft flying by at 1,500 - 2,000 AGL, which quite often can't even be heard above the roar of motorcycles, trucks, etc.

If we really want to protect the parks, maybe you want to consider closing all access! This is beyond ridiculous.

We have provided countless tours in the past to individuals with various handicaps and physical challenges who would have had no other option to enjoy "OUR" National Monuments and Parks.

We have conducted our tours in a professional and responsible manner since before congress acted back in 1999. We have had no accidents or incidents and never received notice of any complaints or concerns.

I'm not trying to be unreasonable, however I believe this preferred alternative, "No Tours", is way beyond what congress had in mind. This will have a detrimental effect on many families in this area who have acted responsibly and will now be out of business.

Sincerely,

Eagle Aviation, Inc.

Correspondence: I write to you today on behalf of Airbus Helicopters to echo the comments of Helicopter Association International and other industry stakeholders in opposing the draft ATMP for Badlands National Park. We disagree with the elimination of Interim Operating Authority (IOA) and urge the National Park Service (NPS) and the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) to do more due diligence to determine the true impacts to the environment, operators, the public, and parks resources of this proposed reduction in flights in the ATMP process.

According to the NPS documents, from 2017-2019 there were 1,475 commercial tours per year on average over Badlands National Park. Under this draft ATMP, commercial air tours will be prohibited within the ATMP boundary of Badlands National Park.

With air tours prohibited inside the park boundary, we believe that air traffic would be concentrated in other areas resulting in significant community impact. Those impacts include safety concerns that were not addressed in the preparation of the plan.

We encourage the NPS to reach out to the operators to determine the local economic impacts of implementing a management plan that so severely restricts overflights.

The draft plan's flight allocation numbers do not take into consideration fluctuations in the market and fluctuations in unforeseen and temporary operator limitations. Additionally, industry marketing trends change and NPS should respect that dynamic, as visitors alter their destinations according to those trends.

The ATMP provides for "quiet technology incentives", however, there is no definition of quiet technologies. The ATMP only notes that "the quiet technology incentive for air tours conducted with quiet technology aircraft is only applicable to those aircraft that the agencies have determined, on a case-by-case basis, qualify for the quiet technology incentive". To incentivize operators to invest in quiet technology, Airbus recommends defining "quiet technologies" to provide operators with greater certainty prior to making their investment decisions.

At Airbus, we are committed to reducing the sound levels of our helicopters to ensure they are smoothly integrated into citizen's everyday lives. Complying with existing industry-wide sound regulations is no longer enough: our goal is to go beyond them. Therefore, we continuously look at ways to make our rotorcraft even quieter and invest in technologies to do so. Today, our H130 (predominantly used by tour operators), H135, H145 and H160 helicopters are industry-wide benchmarks for low sound levels in their respective classes.

While the ATMPs do real economic harm to the operators, we are also concerned about the impact on visitors who choose to experience the National Parks by aerial sightseeing.

As we move past the pandemic years, many National Parks such as Badlands National Park saw their resources strained by the large number of visitors as the public began to travel again. Air tours are an important option for many visitors conducting a once-in-a-lifetime trip to see famous natural landmarks. Visitors taking advantage of air tours benefit by avoiding traffic, wait times, and walking trails that are inaccessible for the disabled or elderly, while reducing congestion and demand on park infrastructure.

The National Parks should be available for all visitors to see. Eliminating flights over the park unfairly limits the elderly, very young, handicapped, and others to experience the park. Limiting flights over the Parks is discriminatory to those who might not have the time, resources, or physical ability to see the park any other way.

Like ground-based tours, air tours are a valid part of our visitor experience, providing a unique window from which we can share our cultural, historical and environmental sites with the world. Air tours require no ground-based infrastructure at the park, which allows visitors accessibility without the need for roads, trails, signs, bathrooms, garbage cans, or other services.

By further restricting an already limited number of allowable air tours, we are reducing opportunities to access our parks in a way that leaves little to no environmental footprint or disturbance. Through carbon-offset efforts and strict altitude requirements to control noise - just to name a few efforts - air tour operators are working to ensure they are responsible stewards of the nation's parks. There are currently no restrictions or mitigation efforts for loud vehicles operating in the park, some of which make more noise than a passing helicopter.

Additionally, the operator pays a fee each time an air tour flies within the park boundary. The National Park Service collects hundreds of thousands of dollars in revenue each year from air-tour flights. Air tours require no park infrastructure, leaving the bulk of overflight fees to go toward supporting services that benefit the public.

Also of concern, the proposed routes now move air tour operations over communities the industry has worked with over many years to avoid flying over. Moving routes will also move the sound of operations over new areas. Air tour operators are committed to flying responsibly and flying neighborly.

Undoubtedly it is essential to preserve the National Parks, yet still enable visitations for all to enjoy. Airbus opposes the draft ATMP. Commercial air tour operators and industry partners, such as Airbus, would welcome collaborative engagement with the FAA, NPS, and all interested parties to benefit the park and the visitors.

Sincerely,

Treg Manning

Correspondence: National parks are places I go to appreciate scenery and history, watch wildlife, and enjoy interpretation. I agree with your recommendation to prohibit noisy air tours over Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

For both park units, commercial air tours have been flying directly over areas where most visitors gather to enjoy each park. Air tours are in direct conflict with interpretive tours, and in Badlands they shatter the wilderness experience.

We go to national parks to get away from the hustle and bustle of our everyday lives to appreciate nature and learn about our history. Noisy air tours should not be allowed to ruin visitor experiences and harm wildlife.

We support your recommendation to eliminate them in Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and Badlands National Park.

Tours are great for people visiting places but under no conditions should areas be disturbed by these tours and that goes ten-fold for area wildlife.

Correspondence: Hello, I am a pilot and would like to bring up a few important things to consider before any decisions are made. Aside from the obvious things like general scenic tour related things to include access for elderly and mobility limited people who deserve to see what this beautiful earth has to offer just as much as any able bodied person. This industry is starting to see a drop in eligible pilots to man certain positions that are extremely important to maintain. We have a lot of pilots starting to retire out of a lot of emergency service positions. In this particular industry, you don't just go to school and get your pilot certifications then get hired by an EMS company. Those companies have flight time minimums in order to be covered by insurance. With that, a company will not hire a pilot unless they have a certain amount of hours, typically, 1500 to 2500 hours of flight experience. Those are just numbers that will make you eligible to be considered for hire. I would like to point out that if you are a low time pilot, you are not simply going to get hours by paying for them yourself beyond your commercial ratings. It's already potentially hundreds of thousands of dollars for a young pilot to get their commercial rating which requires 150 hours. If you don't believe me, I will show you the cost of my education statements. A pilot isn't going to get the next 1350 to 2350 hours by paying for them themselves. That being said, tour piloting is easily one of the biggest and easiest ways for a low time pilot to build hours to fill those important positions that are opening up. Something to consider when trying to remove/limit our industries operations may have real world affects in the years to come when a drought of eligible pilots starts to be realized. As I am sure you understand, helicopter pilots in the medical field are extremely important when it comes to human life. I don't know the numbers, but I would be willing to bet a large sum of money on the idea that life saving capability goes up significantly when you introduce the ability to move a victim of a car accident, or a hiking accident or any other type of emergency when you are able to fly them to a hospital vs waiting for an ambulance. To give you a personal example and experience of this, I used to hike a ton in Hawaii and was part of the Oahu Search and Rescue team after I got out of the Military. One time I was hiking up a 3 mile trail and at the very top of the trail, I found a guy who had fallen off of a waterfall. The waterfall was 75 feet approximately and he was incapable of moving. When I saw him, I did a medical assessment and found that he had a broken pelvis. In other words, there was absolutely no way he was going to get out of there without help. A helicopter was called and deployed to come get him. I helped wave the helicopter in to a spot that allowed for them to hoist down a medic and litter. I then helped them get this guy loaded up and hooked up to the helicopter and flown out. Without that pilot who most likely flew tours in his early years, that poor guy would have had to have been carried out down a very difficult hiking trail. If you aren't familiar with pelvic injuries, something you have to worry about is the broken part of the bone severing major arteries in your pelvic region. The longer you go without emergency service, the higher the chance that something causes him to sever an artery or make other injuries worse. I emplor you to consider what affects it may cause later down the road when a helicopter pilot is needed. Its unfortunate that there are efforts of shutting down ways for pilots to build hours to replace important positions like EMS pilots over noise/environmental complaints (look at Harley Davidsons who are arguably way worse and so many enviornmentally dangerous operaions like mines, oil spills etc.) We leave no trace, no garbage, no tracks, just a little buzz in the background. We operate at altitudes much higher than required to ensure that its not too loud also. In conclusion, imagine it was your kid, grandkid, wife, husband, brother, sister, mom, dad or friend that had a 10% chance of survival with an ambulance or a 80% chance of survival with a helicopter pilot, but the helicopter position wasn't able to be filled due to inexperienced pilots because they weren't capable of building hours to fill those important job positions.
